1 GRADUATE FROM HIGH SCHOOL LIFE

Graduation Flowers and Presents Showered
Upon Them

DR. BIRD SPEAKS

Excellent Program Marks
Departure of Young People

Thursday night eleven students in Glendale high who have hitherto been well to the fore in all the activities of the school, became graduates. There were no tears however, for they were not expelled. Instead a goodly audience gathered to see them receive the diplomas bestowed by Trustee H. W. Yarrick after the class had been duly presented by Principal George U. Moyse with words of commendation for good scholarship and behavior, and then waited to congratulate them and see the graduation presents, the trinkets that are essences to get them flowers, though flowers were there too in moderation. The program was largely musical, a professional "Marche Militaire" (Schubert) played by the school orchestra, conducted by Mrs. Dora Gibson, when the class came in, and a recessional "National Fencibles" (Souza), when they left the platform with their sheepskins.

Like all graduates, they were fair to look upon, the boys spruce and manly but a little nervous, the girls composed and sustained by the consciousness of looking very well in their frilly white gowns of organdie and lace. The class colors are purple and gold, and each girl carried a bouquet of violets, the class flower. The gold was very properly at their feet in the bank of marigolds which hid the footlights, and one wondered where the decorators had secured so many flowers in view of our recent bereavement at the hands of Jack Frost.

Two class members were represented on the program, Dorothy Howard who played in solo on the piano a Serenade by Chaminade, and Harold Shively, president of the class, who presented its gift to the school, a handsomely framed colored print of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It was received by Principal Moyse with expressions of appreciation and exhibited to the audience. There were two other contributions by the school orchestra, "Ter-

WARSHIP BUILDING HALTED ON WAYS BY PRESIDENT

Actual Scrapping to Begin
When the Treaty
Is Ratified

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—President Harding has directed the navy department to stop all construction of ships which would be scrapped under the naval treaty, it was learned at the White House today. No actual scrapping will take place until all countries have ratified the naval treaty, was stated, but President Harding in ordering construction halted, suggested to Secretary of the Navy Denby that great economy would result from stopping all construction on doomed ships at once. The saving to the country as the result of the order will be more than $5,000,000 a month.

MARYLAND AVENUE WANTS ACTION

A petition was presented to the council last night asking that action be taken toward the opening of Maryland avenue, from the northern line of Tract No. 93 to the Verdugo wash. The council will act on this matter at once.

PRAIRIE DOGS PAY COST
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Tens of thousands of thieving prairie dogs and ground squirrels of the west paid the extreme penalty last year, the Department of Agriculture stated today. They were poisoned for stealing crops and range grasses with poisoned grain. The fight is now being carried on in the following states: Kansas, Montana, New Mexico, California, Arizona, Colorado, Oregon, Idaho, Oklahoma, Utah, Washington, South Dakota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Nevada and Wyoming.

EUGENE IMLER RETURNS
Eugene Imler has returned from Selma, where he went the first of the week to attend the funeral of his old friend and chum in the California School of Technology, Samuel Rasmussen.

Whisky Propaganda And Its Reason Set Forth in Editorial

Propaganda is always propaganda. There is always a reason for whisky propaganda. The reason is profit. And profit at the cost of human happiness is not a good reason. The above is from an editorial on "Prohibition" which you will find in this paper tonight. You will find another on "Philanthropy" and still another on "Strange Reasoning." Always you will find good editorials, helpful, thoughtful and constructive. We want you to read and enjoy them.

Read that wonderful column that James W. Foley, poet and humorist, writes under the title of "The Listening Post." He says tonight that the tendency to disregard laws and regulations is subversive of good government and of good citizenship.

It is always uplifting, always interesting and educational.

Under the heading "Tipping by Coupons," Dr. Frank Crane sets forth a scheme for the tipping habit. There is an excellent article by John P. Grimm, another by Della Stewart and paragraphs and wise sayings that are worth while. Get the editorial page habit. Cultivate it and it will cultivate you.

CENTRAL IS VICTOR IN TRACK MEET

Second Day of Competition Brings New Contender

SCORES FIFTY POINTS

Broadway Boys Carry the High Honors in Events

The second day of the interschool track tournament at Inter-mediate went more quickly and smoothly than on Wednesday, all contestants and fans settling down to business in orderly fashion.

Director Blanford was especially pleased with the poise exhibited by the boys, many of whom took their events like old athletes. The girls were more nervous about starting but that he considered natural because track work is new to Glendale girls.

Central Avenue had the highest score at the end of the day with 50 points, counting credits for both boys and girls. The boys of Broadway made the high score in boys' events with 25 points. Girls of Central Avenue had the top score in girls' events with 35 points.

The meet will close this afternoon and at its close Mrs. John Robert White, president of the local federation of Parent-Teacher associations, will present the trophies.

Scores in detail as supplied by Director Albert Blanford, follow:

COL. W. P. STORY INSPECTS GUARD

Addresses Men After a Close Watch of Drilling

The Glendale companies of the 160th infantry, national guards, were inspected Thursday night by Col. Walter P. Story, commander of the regiment, and Major Robert Cotton of the regular army, assigned to the 160th infantry, and instructor and inspector. The officers inspected the local companies and watched them at their weekly drill. After the drill Col. Story in a short address to the men said he was well pleased with the progress shown by the companies and that from snap and interest shown in the drill the local units would be numbered among the best companies of the regiment when that organization takes the field for annual summer maneuvers of the national guards of the state.

Colonel Story was well pleased with the platoon drill of the company, directed by First Sergeant Alexander. The company was turned over to Sergeant Alexander for drill, who in turn assigned Sergeants Wright and Vissman as platoon commanders. Every phase of close order drill was demonstrated. The drill ended with a few minutes instruction in the manual of arms. The platoons were broken up into squads, the corporals taking their squads and putting them through the manual under the supervision of the sergeants.

Every man did his best and the result was that company M. and the headquarters company received only compliments for the efficiency displayed. Major Cotton also addressed the men and said it was about decided that the national guards would camp at Monterey during the summer maneuvers.

CITY AWARDED PIPE LINE BIDS

Bids were opened last night at the meeting of the council for water pipe to be laid along Brand boulevard from Windsor avenue to the San Fernando road. The city of Glendale was awarded the contract for providing and installing the pipe, work to start as soon as the material arrives on the ground.

REST HOME PERMIT

Permit was granted by the council last night to Mrs. L. W. Chobe to conduct a rest home on Sierra avenue; this to be known as "The Secret Garden Rest Home," on provision that the lighting and ventilation of the building be improved at the points specified.

ANNOUNCING ELECTION OF NEW POPE

A scene similar to this will occur at the Vatican, with the announcement of the election of the new Pope. Throngs are shown gathered under the balcony at the Vatican when the election of St. late Pope Benedict XV was announced.

POLICE TRAIL TAYLOR'S SLAYER

Arrest Before Nightfall Is Promised by Los Angeles Authorities

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—"Someone will be under arrest before nightfall, charged with the murder of William D. Taylor." This was the positive assertion here today of Detective Captain David L. Adams, directing a corps of operatives attempting to solve the murder mystery which has almost completely paralyzed the movie world.

Police established as a motive jealousy of the veteran director and were looking for a man said to have expressed a deep-rooted hatred for Taylor because of the latter's attentions to a woman.

GLENDALE MAN IS REPORTED MISSING

Anxiety over the whereabouts of A. Cunningham, an employee of the Glendale Meat Market, was expressed Thursday night by Dick Roberts, his employer.

Mr. Roberts stated that Cunningham, who had been working for the market for some time, had disappeared. He said that he feared Cunningham was either ill or had met with an accident. Cunningham usually carried a large sum of money with him and the suggestion of foul play was advanced as a possibility. Mr. Roberts stated that he had paid Cunningham his wages about 11 o'clock on Wednesday and given him the remainder of the day as a holiday. When he failed to return to his work on Thursday he incidentally was reported to the police.

Remember the Town Pump

What will pass into history as the great sewer disposal mass meeting of the year 1922, was strikingly illustrative of the real American spirit of complex initiatives.

The council it seemed took the initiative in selecting a site, which, two members, exercising their initiatives, refused to accept.

No one worried about it, until somebody realized the location of the site. Then they exercised their initiative and sprung the peculiarly American forum, the mass meeting. There all showed they did home made thinking and refused substitutes. All were impressed with the need of a sewer. But most preferred it out of his own neighborhood and to be of his own favored type of construction.

Then as usual, in America, when it was suggested that all stop, look, and smell with the little plant in Verdugo Canyon as the objective, they lined up intelligently and harmoniously.

The net result of the meeting was that the need of a sewer was firmly established in everybody's mind. All thought is turned toward that objective.

The proposed site as a point of discussion served its purpose in awaking this interest. It is now out of the question, vetoed.

The people had a chance to see the Council and hear its members. The council met the people. Everybody discovered that all are human.

And all are aware that the benefit to Glendale is the main issue. Therefore Verdugo Canyon is going to be a popular resort in the next few months. More power to the noses that go.

Remember, the same sort of mass meeting has been held and the same sort of remarks have been made about every civic improvement in America from the installation of the first town pump in Skunk, Maine. Without it, America would not be—America.

TRAIN STOP IS SOUGHT BY BURBANK

Will Strive to Have That City Placed on Railroad Map

URGE QUICK ACTION

Scheduling of Glendale Starts Campaign in Sister City

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—A matter of interest to this city and one which should be taken up and handled by one or more civic bodies with the idea of getting action is that of limited trains stopping at Burbank instead of rushing through at full speed.

L. M. Rothenburg of the Southern Pacific in this city says that beginning about the first of February some of the limited trains will stop at Glendale. This being the case, Burbank can rightfully expect the same service. Previously, when the matter of stopping the through limited trains here was brought up to the railroad, one of the arguments used against the plan was that Glendale wanted them and if they stopped here they would have to stop in that city also. Now that it is certain they are to stop some of the fast trains there this place may ask for them without fear of the old argument.

Mr. Rothenburg said it had not been given out as to just which trains would stop in Glendale, that it might be the Owl and the Lark. Burbank has a through train to and from San Francisco, but in service they are practically local, making all stops along the line.

The one running to San Francisco leaves here at 10:30 p. m. and is due to arrive at San Francisco at 6:50 p. m. the following day.

The Southern Pacific recently gave the local office authority and equipment for selling tickets and checking baggage to any point in the country or the world, an advantage to be much appreciated in Burbank, but the benefit of this is naturally minimized by the necessity of having to go to Los Angeles to board the train.

SHRINE PLANS NEW FEATURE

Thick Mystery Surrounds Stunt, According to Neale

The Shrine Club of Glendale entertained on Wednesday night with a stag party that was so successful that already plans are being made for another entertainment. Just what form this entertainment will take is not known, as C. E. Neale, president of the organization, will only smile and say, "Just Wait and You'll See," when he is asked for particulars regarding the coming event. He will not even tell on what date this entertainment is going to be held.

Yesterday Mr. Neale said, "The next entertainment of the Shrine Club of Glendale will be a mysterious affair and will be shrouded in mystery until a short time before the date set for the entertainment, but you can tell the world that it will be some party."

With that promise for the future everyone will have to be content until a formal announcement of plans for the affair are announced.

VOTERS REGISTRAR TO BE AT STATION

Pacific Electric Depot Is Location Chosen for Officials

Announcement is made that F. S. Dougall will be stationed daily at the Pacific Electric depot, corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway to register voters of Glendale. This is done to give the voters of the city who were not at home when the registrars called an opportunity to register for the coming elections.

Many inquiries have been made at the Glendale city hall as to where a registrar could be found. These inquiries resulted in the location of Mr. Dougall at the depot which was considered the most centrally located spot of the city.

BENEFIT FOR CHILDREN
Arrangements have been completed for a Glendale tag day as a benefit for the California Home for Crippled Children at 200 South Bonnie Brae street, Los Angeles. It will take place tomorrow, Saturday, and will be in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. C. A. Stockbridge and including: Madames John Robert White, Eustace B. Moore and E. V. Bacon. The tags will be sold by boys and girls of the high school and headquarters will be at the Hills & Gray real estate office, 128 North Brand.

ODD JUST GOOD NEWS

BROTHERHOOD TO ATTEND MEETING
CLEVELAND, Feb. 3.—"It is quite certain the big four brotherhoods of railway workers will attend the joint conference with mine union officials, proposed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America," Warren S. Stone, chief of the locomotive engineers, told the United Press today.

FOREIGN DEBT REFUND ADOPTED BY HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The house today adopted the foreign debt refunding bill, as amended in the senate, after President Harding had telephoned house leaders withdrawing his objections to the bill.

The amendments Harding did not approve were those providing that the interest rate on the $11,000,000 debt be not lower than 4½ per cent and that the bonds of the debtor nations must mature within 25 years.

BALLOT FOR POPE IS UNSUCCESSFUL

ROME, Feb. 3.—A puff of smoke from the little chimney of the little sistine chapel today told watchers outside the Vatican that the first ballot of the cardinals of the sacred college, waited up in the secret conclave to elect a successor to Benedict XV had been unsuccessful.

The ballots of the first gathering held at 10 o'clock this morning had been burned together with a wish of straw and the necessary majority had not been secured by any cardinal.

HARDING TRIES TO BREAK BLOC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Harding administration has been successful to an unexpected degree in its efforts to break up the powerful farm bloc in congress. It is admitted by farm bloc leaders themselves.

Disgusted by the undermining of the senate farm bloc, Senator Norris may resign as chairman of the senate agricultural committee. If Norris resigns, it will be protest, first, against the administration's efforts to destroy the bloc, and second, against the action of some bloc members, who, in Norris' opinion, have weakened too easily under administration pressure.

BROKER SOUGHT IN TAYLOR MYSTERY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Detectives today were reported to be quickly seeking a young New York broker, whose identity is being kept secret, to question him in an effort to bring to light more facts about the murder of William Desmond Taylor.

This young man is said to have been prominent in movie society. He is looked upon as a friend of Mabel Normand. He came from the east, according to the story which detectives are investigating, shortly after Miss Normand returned from New York, some months ago after the premier in the metropolis of "Molly O." Detectives gave no indication of what light they believed he might possibly shed on the mysterious slaying.

INSPECT SCHOOL HEATING PLANTS

Superintendent White Investigates the Pemberton System

Today Superintendent Richard D. White and David Hibben, president of the board of education are making a tour of inspection of schools which have installed what is known as the Pemberton heating and ventilating system. Briefly outlined it provides for large fire places in which any fuel can be used. In front of those fireplaces and in the room are registers and ducts which suck in the air of the room and draw it into the fireplace. Fresh air comes in through ventilators near the ceiling. The claim made for the system is that the floor is kept just as warm as the ceiling by the constant circulation of the air. The investigation is being made to determine whether it is a system practical for the new school buildings the board is constructing.

IRISH NOW QUARREL

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Irish extremists have forced Michael Collins to renge from a boundary agreement reached with Sir James Craig in London last month, the Ulster premier announced in a statement after a conference with Winston Churchill, minister of colonies here today.

The south now demands nearly one-half of all Ulster, Craig declared.

The Ulster leader said that his conference with Collins, held in Dublin yesterday, which broke up after a serious disagreement, showed that Collins' hand had been forced by radicals and that the boundary question could not be settled by a commission as had been proposed. He said Lloyd George's assurances that boundary rectifications would be minor ones, were swept away by Collins' "new attitude."

Craig offered to refer the claim of the South to the whole British cabinet.

HUGE CROWD HELPS WARM C. OF C. HOME

Six Hundred Crowd Into Auditorium of New Quarters

MANY NEW MEMBERS

Big Meeting Is Provided With a Spirit of Boost

Nearly 600 people crowded into the chamber of commerce auditorium last night to be present at the formal opening of that institution. It was thought that on account of this event having been postponed several times, interest in the opening would possibly be lacking, but the remarkable attendance showed that the members of the chamber are on their toes when it comes to supporting their organization. Those present included a large majority of the 250 new members that have been enrolled since the last public reception, held on September 30. But last night there was no distinction between the old and the new members — everyone seemed to enter into the "big family" spirit and the affair developed into what seemed to be a mammoth "home coming." Each one's hand was laid in greeting to those around him and, as a result, good will reigned supreme.

For the occasion the stage was located in the center of the south wall of the auditorium, so that it was in plain view of all parts of the hall and the alcove as well. As early as 7 o'clock the crowd began filing in, and by 7:30, the time set for the beginning of the program, the room was comfortably filled. On account of several of those on the program not having arrived, the opening number was delayed, but the guests continued to gather until after 8:15, at which time the program was started.

The program rendered was strictly high-class. Those who selected the numbers evidently did so with a great deal of care, for it is very seldom that a program of such high-class numbers is heard in Glendale.

Y. M. Hollister, the newly-elected president of the chamber of commerce, called the gathering to order.

"When I undertook to do the work of president of the chamber of commerce," he said, "I was told that there was no work con-

G. W. PETERS IS ROBBED IN OWN FRONT YARD

Lone Bandit Robs Citizen of Over One Hundred Dollars; Escapes

One of the most daring holdups ever attempted in this city was made last night when a lone bandit held up G. W. Peters, proprietor of the oil station at Central avenue and Colorado street in the yard of his home at 634 West Broadway. The bandit secured $20 in currency, $8 worth of Union Oil gasoline coupons and a check for $65. A larger bag of money in the house and $40 in the pocket of Mr. Peters were overlooked by the bandit in his haste. Mr. Peters said that when he closed the oil station he noticed a young man in a small car loitering in the vicinity of the station. The man was apparently watching someone. Mr. Peters and his wife drove home and after entering the house Mr. Peters went into the yard for some firewood. As he stepped from the house the bandit pulled a revolver and said: "Give me your money or I will kill you." Mr. Peters gave the man a small wallet containing the money secured by the bandit and the man fled. That the holdup was committed by an amateur was apparent, said Mr. Peters, by the fact that he overlooked the larger sum in his pocket and seemed extremely nervous throughout the holdup.

As soon as the bandit secured the money he fled and Mr. Peters notified the police. Motorcycle Officers Trautwein and Collins answered the call and made a record run to the scene of the robbery but were unable to get a trace of the bandit. He had apparently escaped in a car parked near the Peters home.

WEATHER.

Southern California: Tonight and Saturday, fair; continued cold. Heavy to killing frost in morning. Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Saturday. Frost tonight.

DAMAGED

A wreath of Western Australia wild flowers recently arrived in England to be placed on the Unknown Warrior's grave in Westminster Abbey. The wreath was chosen in a solid block of ice, and when the flowers were thawed they proved to be just as fresh as when they were gathered, in spite of their six-weeks' journey through the tropics.

While there is life there is hope for everybody but the undertaker.

CONGRESS TO JUNK OUR WARSHIPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Congressional action to halt construction of American battleships, as provided by the arms conference, is expected soon. Such action will mean a saving of more than $7,000,000 a month to the American taxpayers, and congressional leaders are anxious to make the naval building holiday a reality as soon as possible.

'SURE FIRE' COMES TO THE GLENDALE

Hoot Gibson and his winning smile are at the Glendale theatre today and tonight in a new Universal feature, "Sure Fire," adapted from the novel, "Bransford of Rainbow Ridge." The breezy cowboy saunters from one thrill to another in his imitably affable manner. Jeff Bransford seems to have been written particularly for Hoot Gibson, so perfectly does Eugene Manlove Rhodes' famous character fit the smiling western star.

Fully 65 per cent of the lace machines in the Nottingham (England) district are standing idle and large numbers of operatives are out of employment with no indication as to when they will again go to work.

POINTS OF INTEREST.

Central Avenue girls made a wonderful showing, scoring more points in girl's events than all other school combined. These girls are likely to win the city championship for their school, even though the Central Avenue boys are giving them scanty support.
Frank Wyckoff, senior of Broadway and Denny Tattow, junior of Pacific won first place in two events. Both are all around athletes and but for the rule limiting a contestant to two events would probably have won other places.
Dale Hurlburt, junior of Cerritos, won a second and third place. Wilbur Logan, senior of Central, who won last year's soccer kick for distance, again won this event.

A great deal of interest is being shown over the relay races, which wind up the track meet tomorrow. Central Avenue is the favorite in the girls' relay, while Broadway is expected to capture the boys' cup.

PACKER AUTO SALE STARTS WITH RUSH

Big Used Car Offering Attracts Much Attention at Sale

The first big day of the gigantic used car sale that is being conducted by the Packer Auto company, Colorado and Brand, is going off with a bang. Throughout last night and this morning there was almost a mad scramble for these high grade used autos, which fact shows that there are a lot of people in Glendale who are desirous of taking advantage of genuine low prices when they are offered. These people realize that there are many advantages to be enjoyed by owning an automobile, as well as many pleasures to be derived, and of these they are determined to avail themselves.

Although this sale is but a few hours old a number of cars have already been sold. These include several of the high priced cars as well as some of the cheaper machines. Up to noon today the demand for these used cars was still increasing and the prospects are that the 40 cars will be disposed of long before the announced closing date of the sale arrives.

The people of Glendale should not forget that each car offered in this sale has been thoroughly overhauled. The weak or worn parts have been entirely replaced and every car has been put in the finest possible running condition. The personal guarantee of this firm goes with every car sold, so that the purchaser can feel assured of getting a square deal. If by chance any car sold is not satisfactory in every detail, this company will make it right. This firm expects to do business in Glendale for years and for this reason it must make every purchaser a satisfied customer.

Cars in this sale range in price from $75 to $2200, and include all types and makes. A $10 service book is given free with every car sold. All autos are being sold on the installment plan, and the store is being kept open every evening during the sale.

BUBBLES

(From the Baltimore Sun)
After you have caught it,
The bubble that you blew,
Did you really want it,
And will it really do?
Today, perhaps, you're going to find
The beauty and the hope and trust
You've had so many years in mind,
Your thoughts have fashioned from the dust.

Today is mightier than all power,
For in its joyousness reborn
We shall be seekers of the flower
That blossoms on the tree of morn.
O, love, what is a kiss you bring
But appetite for more,
As wave by wave the oceans swing
From silver-shore to shore?

HUGE CROWD AT CHAMBER OPENING

nected with the office, but it has kept me on the job from the first minute. I am pleased to greet so many members of the chamber here tonight. This turnout looks good for Glendale—it shows that this is the liveliest organization in Glendale today. A few years ago there were just a handful of people in the chamber, but now they are being brought in on an average of about 20 a week. I want to invite all of you to the general meetings that will be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month, the next to be held February 16. The chamber has done wonderful work during the past year, but we hope and expect to make 1922 a banner year. But we need more members. Every person in Glendale should at least be a prospective member. I hope this year to see sectional feeling eliminated from Glendale. What is good for one part of the city is good for another and we must all get together and boost."

William H. Reeves, city manager of Glendale, was then introduced as master of ceremonies. Mr. Reeves told the people that he considered it a high honor being permitted to serve in this capacity at such a wonderful occasion. He dwelt on the charming qualities of Glendale and the wonderful work that has been done in the past by the chamber. "When I lived in Pasadena," said Mr. Reeves, "I honestly believed that was the most wonderful city in the world, but since coming to Glendale I realize fully how mistaken I was at that time."

After the community singing of "America," led by Mayor Spencer Robinson and the celebrated Sammie Sisters, Dr. J. C. Livingston delivered the invocation. This was followed by a beautifully rendered selection, "There Is No Death," by Mayor Robinson, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Robinson. As an encore Mr. and Mrs. Robinson rendered "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Mrs. Robinson sang the first verse, and just as the chorus was finished, Harry Girard walked into the hall. The chorus was then repeated by Messrs. Girard and Robinson, with Mrs. Robinson at the piano. This number carried the house "off its feet," as they say.

From this point the affair took on a very informal attitude. All the restraining barriers of formality were swept away, which made the occasion unusually delightful.

After reading the roll call of new members, each new member standing when his or her name was called, the celebrated Sammie Sisters, Misses Lorina and Alberta Davis, were introduced, and in a perfectly wonderful manner gave a series of American bugle calls on cornets. These two gifted and lovable young ladies won over their audience just as they did the thousands of soldier boys during the world war.

In presenting the new members to the chamber, Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church of Glendale, said:

"I count it a very great honor to be permitted to present these new members to the chamber. I am inspired to see that there are so many people in Glendale who are centered on the purpose of keeping this city the most beautiful in the world. I hope the chamber will never get so large that it cannot be a great big family. I want to congratulate the new members on showing the good sense and good judgment they have in becoming members of this organization. But remember you have joined this organization with the intention of working. When called upon to do so, respond by doing the best you can."

Following this presentation of new members, L. H. Wilson, chairman of the publicity committee, was introduced. He called attention to the slogan contest that has been in progress during the past few weeks, and announced that the slogan presented by Otis Cowan had been selected, this being: "Glendale, the Fastest Growing City in the United States."

Prof. Marquardt then rendered very sweetly a violin selection, an American negro melody, "Deep River," and responded, generously with an encore.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard (with the declared intention of outshining Mr. and Mrs. Robinson) then sang "Thy Face," and responded with an encore, "A Mother's Love." These numbers were given very generous applause.

In receiving the new members, Dr. Jessie A. Russell said:

"Coming into the chamber as you do, you come in as workers. We want no knockers in this organization—only boosters. Put your shoulders to the wheels and do what you can. Paying your dues is only half your duty."

This was followed by a vocal selection by K. Louis of Hawaii, who responded with an encore. Dr. James A. Belyea then gave an interesting talk on "Our New Members—By One of Them."

The Sammie Sisters then rendered "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," and "Rosary," one using a cornet and the other a trumpet. These numbers were very generously received and, as an encore, the young ladies played for the 250th time, "I Love You, California."

An interesting talk was then given by Judge Gavin W. Craig, on "The Spirit of the Building." He said in part:

"In explanation of why I am not living in Glendale, I will say that when I came to Glendale looking for a place to hang my hat I was told that I would have to move after 60 days. I then wandered over to Eagle Rock, but some day I expect to come back to Glendale and make another attempt to get settled here."

A vocal solo entitled "Life's Paradise" was then rendered by Mrs. Alice Harwood Farish, recently from Canada. Mrs. Farish responded very gracefully with an psichorean Vindobona" (Godowsky), and the "Evening Star" from Tannhauser, by Richard Wagner. In the number last named the air was most beautifully played in solo by Eldin Bengt, with a violin accompaniment by orchestra members.

Miss Freeda Potts sang "At Parting" (Rogers) and "The Birth of Morn" (Leon) with Mary Florence Pate at the piano.

Remsen Du Bois Bird, D. D., president of Occidental College was the orator of the evening. He is uncommonly young for the position he fills and his vigorous, well-groomed personality made a favorable impression, his message to the class probably carrying further than it would had he been older.

"Furnish For the New Day," was his announced subject, though his theme for the most part was "What's the use—is it worth while?" He said he would like to talk in the words and the experience of a man who had lived a long time ago and had great wisdom, large wealth, a position of honor and who in the end disapproved his own arguments made for the sake of compelling men to think.

He pictured such a man watching the sun rise and set day after day, the flowing of rivers, the procession of the seasons, and man himself living, dying and being forgotten, and then asking himself, of what use is it? He then imagined such a one seeking experience and finding that in much wisdom there is sorrow, that knowledge as an end in itself, is never satisfying, that neither wealth, nor the fame that comes from achievement brings content, that all is vanity and striving after the wind until he discovers that he who would keep his life must lose it in service, that "everything in God's great world is an analogy of the joy that may be ours if we but serve."

"The great sacrifices of the war, of which we are the beneficiaries, are bringing all humanity together," he declared, "in a wonderful fellowship of kindness and justice to serve the other man. What the world needs today is a leadership that is impassioned with a desire to serve that all mankind may be free."

Democracy is not a solution of the problems of the day. We may have a democratic form of government and still be under tyranny. Democracy and freedom are only established when they are established in the hearts of the leaders and the hearts of the people.

"These young people are part of the great body of the world and I hope that they and all like them who are entering upon the leadership of the world will dedicate themselves to making Americanism the spirit of the world and to making the world fit for Americanism and may God bless them and guide us in this great and wonderful day."

Members of the class are Martha Eilers, Doris Tazel Huse, Dorothy Mae Howard, Elsie Jepson, Margere Erleen Kendall, Leona Lois Palmer, Harold Adams Shively, Zenas Walter Smith, Irma Varso, Bessie Marie Vorwerk, and Lois Zellar.

Beside them on the stage sat their class teacher, Miss Maude E. Soper. Serving as ushers were girls from the A-11 class who will be graduated next February, viz: Margaret Fife, Gladys Peckham, June Hurlbert, Ethel Burke, Geneva Bagg, and Annie Fuelscher.

MEAT MARKET STAGES GRAND OPENING

The grand opening of the Golden State Meat Market, corner Colorado and Glendale avenue, will take place Saturday, February 4. Joseph Wagner, proprietor of this establishment, states that he is going to make his market one of the leading places of its kind in Glendale. His place will be modern to the very last detail. The store is new, clean and appealing, and it is the intention of the manager to keep it so.

Everything in the way of fresh and salted meats, hams and bacon, fish and poultry will be carried by this establishment, and, according to the proprietor, the prices will be "way down."

DANIELS TO OPEN WITH DRY GOODS

Merchants of Gateway Market Pleased With Success of Venture

R. M. Daniels, who has been in the dry goods business for a number of years, will open an establishment of this nature in the Gateway Market building. The formal opening of this store will take place about the first of next week.

The merchants of the Gateway Market are more than pleased at the patronage they have received since the grand opening, two weeks ago. They say the residents of that section are fully awake to the advantages of this market and in return, are giving the merchants excellent support.

This number was followed by a selection, "Amorita," by the Sammie Sisters. The program closed with the community singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," led by the Sammie Sisters, Mayor Robinson and Harry Girard.

COLORADO P. T. A. HOLDS MEETING

Patriotic Music and Songs Are Given for Program.

A very interesting program was enjoyed by members of the Colorado Parent-Teacher association Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. E. S. McKee, president, in the chair.

A business session was followed by the serving of refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and a birthday cake, which was cut by Mrs. John Robert White, president of the local federation of Parent-Teacher associations, who told in a brief talk of the beginning of the Parent-Teacher association movement 25 years ago, and what it had meant to the public schools of the United States.

Mrs. W. M. Crawford, patriotic chairman of the federation, made a patriotic speech, and two songs were sung by Mrs. Frank N. Arnold, with Miss Gertrude Chapman at the piano.

A patriotic program was then given by children of the kindergarten, which was followed by a dialogue by three little girls on "The Meaning of the Flag." Ruth Lockwood telling what the red signifies, Martelle McKee, the meaning of the white, and Maurine Burke the significance of the blue.

The next number was an acoustic "Old Glory," the parts being taken as follows: "O," George Rutler; "L," Ruby Coker; "D," Billy Lar; "G," Cleo Austin; "L," Ben Cox; "O," Alice Leighton; "R," Emma Boynton, and "Y," Edith Goss.

A highland fling was danced by Maurine Burke, and two children represented the patriotic anniversary of the month—Benah Gaines February 12, the birthday of Lincoln, and Roland Headlee February 22, the birthday of Washington.

Two songs were then sung by the kindergartners: "There Are Many Flags in Many Lands," and "America." A surprise for the president, Mrs. McKee, closed the program. Miss Ma Waite, principal, had promised the child who secured the largest number of members for the association a handsome silk flag. Rhodora McKee was the enterprising pupil who distanced all competitors. She was called upon to recite "Your Flag and My Flag" and was then presented with the beautiful trophy. As Mrs. McKee was in ignorance of the fact that her daughter was to appear on the program or to receive the flag, it was a complete and most pleasant surprise.

Freckled Pink Shoulders Win Verdict for Girl Against Beauty Parlor

Miss Grace Naughton owned a pair of freckled, pink shoulders, and a beauty doctor said that she could remove the freckles and tried to. The beauty doctor failed, so Miss Naughton brought suit in the Small Claims Court of San Francisco for the recovery of the amount of money she paid, alleging that the freckles stayed out. The judge took a peep at the uncovered shoulders of the fair damsel and rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. The exhibits are modestly shown here, but a nifty fur cloak prevents a too-curious gaze.

EAGLE ROCK GETS CHAFFEE STORE, CHANGES HERE

A. E. Monell, manager of the Chaffee store on Brand just south of Broadway, states that the store is to be consolidated with No. 30 at 113 North Brand, the change taking place Saturday, February 11. Some of the stock and fixtures will be moved to Eagle Rock, where a Chaffee store will be opened in one of the new buildings on Colorado.

Mr. Monell goes to Santa Ana to take charge of the Chaffee store No. 31, located there. Newton McBryde is being transferred to store No. 30. Mr. Endsley, who has had charge of the market department, and Robert Stone, go to Eagle Rock.

Rumors are circulating, which have been strongly substantiated, that Roberts & Echols are closing a lease for the premises vacated by the Chaffee store, and will transfer their drug store to the larger and lighter quarters.

The store they will vacate is desired by the First National bank, which will thus be able to consolidate its banking rooms and not be cut off, as a present, from its savings department. The change should prove advantageous all around.

FRIDAY EVE. DANCING CLASS

Mrs. Nanno Woods' Wednesday evening ballroom dancing class has grown to such proportions that she has decided to open a second dancing class, to be held every Friday evening, 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. The Friday class will be welcomed especially by high school and college students, teachers, etc. Class opens next Friday, February 3. Course of 10 lessons, $6.50. Only 20 pupils accepted. These are not public dancing lessons; but are private classes conducted by Mrs. Woods herself in her beautiful home, 122 West Milford street. Phone Glendale 394.—Adv.

GLENDALE GIRL DANCERS WIN NEW HONORS

Edith Lindsay, Young Artist at New Ambassador Hotel

Sharing honors with Maurice and his charming partner, Leonore Hughes, Glendale's own dancers—Lois Naudain, Margaret Brown and Sarah Chandler, who have gained recognition as the "Edith Lindsay Dancers," presented a delightful "Gypsy Ballet" at the Ambassador hotel on Tuesday evening. This group of dancers is well known at the Ambassador, and their appearances are looked forward to. "The Edith Lindsay Dancers" have been in great demand all season.

CLEARANCE SALE OF SHOES NOW AT FLEER'S

A grand clearance sale will be out on for an entire week by the Wallace H. Fleer Shoe store, 112 East Broadway. This sale will start Saturday, February 4, and will continue until Saturday, February 11. There will be a tremendous price slash of all discontinued and odd lines of shoes, these including footwear for ladies, men and children. In this lot there will be women's high shoes, oxfords, pumps and strap slippers, men's high shoes, oxfords and work shoes, boys' school shoes and girls' and misses shoes of all kinds.

The sale will be carried over to the men and children's clothes departments. Everything in the way of clothing, underwear, shirts, ties, hats, coats, etc., will be marked way down. In addition reductions will be made on a lot of miscellaneous goods, such as sweaters, slippers, night shirts, etc.

Desirable property, tenantless, always raises questions in the minds of observers. One of these is: Doesn't the owner know how to advertise?

Woman Sheriff Directs Execution of Man She Saved

Mrs. Gunda Martindale, sheriff of Allamakee, Iowa, will spring the trap that will cause the hanging of Earl Throst, found guilty of murdering a young girl. It was Mrs. Martindale's courage and strategy that saved Throst from being lynched by enraged farmers who found the lifeless body of a pretty school teacher, of whose murder Throst was found guilty.

CERRITOS P. T. A.'S HOLD MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of the Cerritos avenue school was held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The program rendered consisted of musical selections and recitations given by the first and fifth grades of the school.

A poem, "The Landing of the Pilgrims," was read by Prof. Harry Guard, who followed this by a perfect rendition of a Southern and an Irish song.

The principal speaker of the afternoon was Miss Mabel Lathan, assistant professor of history at the University of Southern California.

A talk was given by Prof. Richardson D. White on "The Aims of the Parent-Teacher Association," in which he paid particular attention to the fact that the week the 25th anniversary of the Parent-Teacher associations of California is being observed.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES CO. GET SHIPMENT

The Automobile Tire Company, 211 South Brand Boulevard, has just received a car load shipment of Globe tires, all of which have the herringbone tread, one of the most effective non-skid treads on the market today. These Globe tires are double cured and may be secured in both road and fabric. The management of this establishment emphasizes the fact that all of these are "firsts" tires and carry a written guarantee of 8,000 miles for the cords and 6,000 miles for the fabrics. The prices that are being placed on these tires are really astonishing, being 30 per cent below list figures.

This company is just concluding the sale of two car loads of Federal tires, all of which were disposed of within the last two months. In these two cars there were something like 2,000 tires.

CONSIDERATE THIEF
DENVER, Colo., Feb. 3.—The phone rang in Denver police headquarters. "Send us to 16th and Washington, and you'll find that big touring car that was stolen this afternoon," said a voice over the phone. "Who's this talking?" demanded headquarters. "This is the bird that stole the car. The radiator's liable to freeze, and it's too good a car to ruin," was the reply—then the receiver was hung up. Police found the car in good condition.

All makes of tires are handled by this firm. "The people of Glendale are beginning to realize the wonderful values we are offering them," said the manager of this establishment this morning, "and as a result our stock is being turned over rapidly, thus assuring a fresh stock of new tires to those who trade with us. We are more than pleased at the way the tire buying public is treating us. Our business is growing daily, which proves that Glendale people know actual value when they see it."

IT JUST MAKES ME HUNGRY
to try to shop at the ROLLIN PIN BAKE SHOP, 214 East Broadway—their food is always so tempting! Today while in there I bought some delicious home made bread and rolls, with a perfectly wonderful cake for supper. And, too, their delectable bran-malt health cookies are just dandy! Do stop in and buy your dessert there—it doesn't even pay to cook at home when you can buy such wonderful pastries!

The new triple skirt is a feature of the spring costume.

FIRST APPROACHING IS THAT TIME when the gay young cavalier singles from out his acquaintance one maiden upon whom to shower his attentions in the form of greetings—usually yearning, a trifle touching, and always sentimental of verse. Already the kiddies have learned that at FISHER'S VARIETY STORE, 212 East Broadway, they can buy the loveliest of valentines—all sorts and kinds at prices that range from 1 cent (they're for the "gang") to 35 cents—perfect beauties that are just wonderful for "her!"

IT'S JUST A PLEASURE TO DO ONE'S SHOPPING at NUSSBAUM'S GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET—244 North Brand Boulevard—for it is indeed the "store of personal service!" That is the very best and freshest—although their prices are really extremely low! An interesting feature, to my mind, is Nussbaum's Saturday special—announced every week! For tomorrow there will be the finest of corn syrup—Peach's brand, both the light and dark, at only 15 cents the can! And, my dear, can you imagine a large two and a half pound can of Tropic peaches for only 25 cents? It's unbelievable, isn't it? But then, apricots of the same brand are being offered at that low price, too! And, do your know, we just love apple butter, so imagine my joy at being able to buy the well known Libby brand at 18 cents the can! These are just a few examples of the saving when you shop at Nussbaum's—for they've a meat department that is every bit as economical as the grocery store—handling only fresh A1 meats at amazingly low prices!

IT WILL BE A PERFECT JOY to prepare the meals for the family if you've a wonderful cabinet range on which to cook! At the GLENDALE FURNITURE STORE, 606-608 East Broadway, I found a set of dandy gas ranges, today! Mr. Flagg is closing out his entire stock at just a little above cost—in fact, the reduction is to be 20 per cent I understand! Imagine—a 20 per cent reduction on those wonderful cabinet ranges! It will certainly be worth your while to at least pay a substantial deposit on one—to insure its being held until you're in a position to have it delivered. Surely you'll need a good sized range in the new home, won't you? Well, here is your opportunity!

ETRUSCAN red is the new shade of the season. Blues and browns are also good.

THE FAMOUS WHITE ROSE SPRING WATER—the laughing water—is bottled fresh at the springs daily and delivered to the INDEPENDENT ICE CO. of 106 East California avenue. Call Glendale 217 and order a bottle today!

A GRADUATION GIFT is a remembrance of a happy and momentous event to be kept throughout a life-time! Do exert care in the selection of an appropriate graduation gift for the young people of your family—or your friends! At ARTHUR H. DIBERN'S, 121 North Brand Boulevard, you will find a most worthwhile selection of attractive and timely gifts for the occasion. Dainty dainties, gold and silver mesh bags, beautiful rings and wrist watches are all acceptable to the "Sweet Girl Graduate," while for the young men a handsome gold watch or good-looking signet ring is just the thing. Yes, and you may also have rings designed to order at Dibern's!

Dame Fashion now introduces the long, narrow sleeve for spring.

FETCHING FROCKS FOR SPRINGTIME—cleverly designed to express the wearers' own personality and individuality in all its charms, are displayed at the FASHION SHOP, 406 South Brand Boulevard. And, will you believe it—Madame Geraldine is closing out her entire stock of good-looking tricot dresses at unusual reductions—from $12.50 up. Can you imagine it? And, truly they have the most stunning lines—real New York models! Madame Geraldine also designs and makes stunning gowns to order from $15.00 up!

The new colors are rich and warm, but above all and through all flows a stream of warm Etruscan red—rust, brick, ochregray and much brown.

IF YOU WOULD HAVE A LOVELY HOME—by all means select a lot that commands a beautiful view—for the setting is just half the consideration! I know you'll be delighted with the wonderful lot on Central avenue near Randolph which JAMES W. PEARSON of 108 North Brand boulevard showed me this morning. It is really quite large—50x148—and simply wonderful for a home! The price is exceptionally reasonable, too!

Empire green, dark blue and peonia are shades often shown this season.

A WOMAN'S HOME IS HER KINGDOM—the Kingdom of her heart! It is the realm over which she rules—rules with her golden sceptre of love—but with an eye ever on the alert for any of the little comforts and conveniences that might tend to make this home more livable and more pleasant for all other members of the family! Here in these columns I'm bringing you news of the very latest the shops are offering—gowns that Milady may be beautiful; wonderful ranges, that hubby's dinner will be "just right" for him—and all manner of necessary and attractive commodities for the home!

They're all to be found in Glendale—in the shops and stores of our own little city—and at prices so much less than the neighboring competitors with large establishments that I know it will pay you to buy it in Glendale—or at least to shop at home, first.

Hats of crepe de chine are trimmed with plumes, made of ribbon loops—plumes which fall off the edge of the brim in the manner of ostrich feathers.

LOVELY AS A BREATH OF SPRINGTIME are the charming new hats that are being shown at the YARBROUGH HAT SHOPPE, 108 West Broadway. The season's colors are delightfully displayed in a myriad of lovely combinations of materials—and colors—especially featuring the beautiful orange, and henna, as well as reds, blues and other bright colors! Then, too, of fetching styles and shapes there are many—you will find just the sort of hat that best becomes you at Mrs. Yarbrough's—and at a price that will interest you! While you're there, do stop in and have your hair modelled at LA VANITY SHOPPE—Mrs. Nye is an expert!

FOR really expert cleaning—work of the better kind—be sure to call the BRAND CLEANERS, 217 South Brand Boulevard—their workmanship is excellent although their prices are very reasonable!

POSTMASTER GETS BOUQUETS FOR HIS WORK

Clerks Show Intelligence
By Delivering Perish-
ables After Hours

Taking the place of complaints about the service rendered when Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson first took charge of the independent postoffice in Glendale, complimentary letters came to the office with each batch of mail for the postmaster.

One letter is deserving of mention, as it illustrates just what sort of service is being given the public by the personnel of the postoffice under the direction of Mr. Jackson. The letter stated that a package of perishable articles arrived at the postoffice consigned to the writer. The package arrived after a: the deliveries for the day had been completed and was to be held over until the next day's delivery. One of the clerks, realizing that if the package was held in the postoffice until the next day it would be valueless to the consignee, delivered it after he had finished his work at the postoffice.

This personal service so favorably impressed the consignee that the letter was written the postmaster complimenting him on having such an efficient staff of assistants.

DANGER IN MOONSHINE
HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 3.—Lye, fusel oil, and wood alcohol are not the only poisonous substances in bootleg whisky, according to Deputy Sheriff Frank Hampe, Harris County deputy, who claims the state still-capturing championship, is considered the local bootleg authority. "Not only do fusel oil and lye exist in poison moonshine whisky, but frequently cockroaches, mice and wood insects go into the deadly concoction," Hampe said. "Barrels used for fermenting mash, are left uncovered," according to Hampe.

THREE GENERATIONS OF GRANT FAMILY LEADERS IN WASHINGTON'S SOCIAL LIFE

This photograph, made in Washington, shows three generations of a famous family prominent in the social life of the national capital. They are Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, widow of General Grant and daughter-in-law of President Grant, with her daughter, Princess Cantacuzene Speransky, formerly Miss Julia Dent Grant, and her debutante granddaughter, Princess Bertha.

"This allows the rodents and insects to fall in and die. Moonshiners make no efforts to take the dead animals and bugs out." A dead pig was found in a barrel of mash destroyed on one of his raids, Hampe asserted.

PANIC IN EAR MUFFS.

DENVER, Feb. 3.—Ear muffs are passing. Denver clothing stores are passing. Closed cars and styles have so cut down the demand for ear warmers that few Denver stores carry them.

CALIFORNIA GIRL CITY OF 50,000 TEACHERS TO BE PROTECTED BY 1922 HERE

Eastern Females Capturing Appointments Due
Native Daughters

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 3.—The California Board of Education is planning on "tightening up" the regulations with regard to qualifications for teachers in state schools as a result of the large influx of teachers from the east, many of them with wide experience, who are menacing the positions of California's young and beautiful teachers who have just graduated from normal schools or universities in the state after taking the regular teacher's courses.

According to Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, it will be the future policy of the Board of Education to deny certification in the case of any and all elementary school teachers who cannot show six units of work in a California teachers' college, or in one of the universities of the state. All prospective teachers in the state are already required to take such work before they can get a teachers' certificate from a university, without taking added examinations.

The big influx of eastern teachers last year was attributed to the wages offered, and to climatic conditions; and again this year the Board is being swamped with applications. The Board has decided to give California teachers, who are acquainted with the problems of the state and oft by necessity must live here because of their families, preference over outsiders. However, there has been a good deal of criticism from time to time from various sources because of the large number of highly qualified teachers from outside the state who have been barred from position because of the Board rules.

OVERLAND SEDAN IS COSY CORNER

Weather Brings No Chill to Those Within Its Doors

The cold, raw weather of the past month has created a big demand for closed cars of all kinds, and the Overland dealers have found this especially true in regard to the new series four-door Overland sedan. This car has no competition at all in the motor world at its remarkably low price today, and this has been proven by the enormous sales on this particular model since January 1. Only this week the main branch downtown has delivered 28 of these closed cars, and Mr. Smith is increasing the members in the Overland family in Glendale daily, several of these sedans already having been delivered and quite a number on order for future delivery.

This latest achievement by the Overland organization, although it has been on the market now for two years, has really only become a proven success in the last year, as it takes fully a year in hard, practical usage to put a new motor car model past the experimental stage. The first year that the Overland 4 model was out, brought out the weak points in it and steps were immediately taken to rectify these. As a result, the past year has seen the production of this model steadily climb, absolutely free from any troubles whatsoever, and the best guarantee of this is the statements of Overland owners and drivers during this successful period.

The car, in this two-year trial, has proven itself absolutely dependable, with a spring construction which not only insures the easiest riding car of its size and weight, but of unbreakable material. Nothing but vanadium steel is used in their construction.

The unusual gasoline mileage makes the car one of the most, if not the most, economical on the market to operate. Mr. Smith states he is unable to keep any of these models in his used car stock, they being grabbed up as fast as he can trade them in, and the factory has given its promise that the design of the car will not be changed for some time to come, insuring a good resale value of all these models for years to come. A big 1922 is predicted for all Overland dealers.

A. A. U. MATCH AT HIGH SCHOOL GYM

National Guard Basket Ball Team to Meet
Goodyears

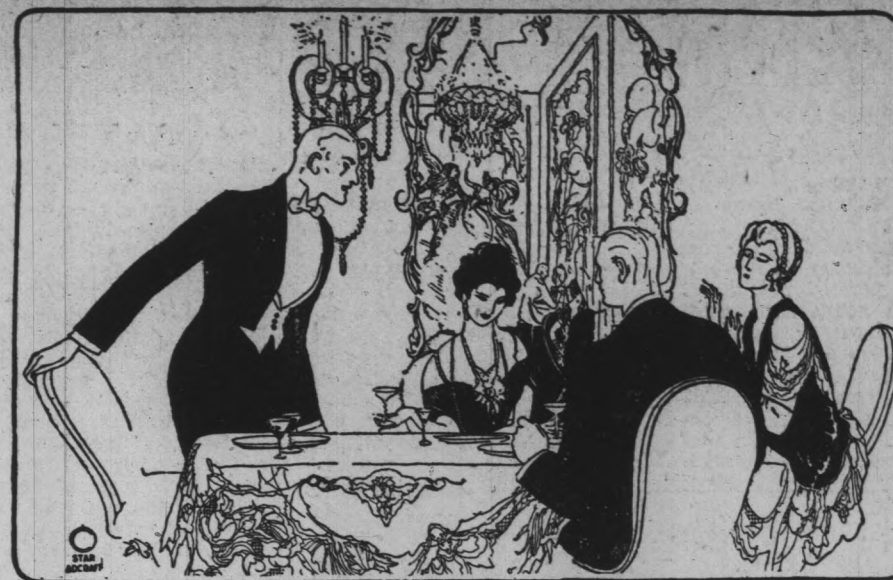

The basketball team of the Glendale companies of the national guard entered in the A. A. U. will play the first game in that organization tonight at the Glendale high school, when it meets the team from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. The game will be called at 7:30 p. m. in the girls' gymnasium of the high school and all Glendale fans are urged to attend the game and see the local team display the same form against the Goodyear team that it used in winning the championship of the 160th infantry regiment. Under A. A. U. rules the Glendale team will play two games a week during the season. The line-up for Glendale will be: Demmon and Price, forwards; W. McIvor and Wilde, guards, and Jensen, center.

Well Known Sub-Divider
Makes New Prophecy
for Glendale

Joining the ranks of the prophets who have been moved to the exercise of their powers of second sight by the wonderful achievements of Glendale in the past year, J. Harvey McCarthy, the well-known subdivider of Los Angeles, declares that in his belief Glendale's population certainly will have reached the 50,000 mark by 1925—and this without the absorption of any other community. If anything, Mr. McCarthy is inclined to believe that he has been a little too modest in his prophecy. He says that he has based his position on the past growth of Glendale, but he believes that the future growth will proceed at an even faster speed. "There is no such thing as a free lunch," he says, "and no such thing as a free lunch. Success is an old and true adage which has a special application to Glendale," said Mr. McCarthy. "The success of Glendale has been advertised far and wide and has attracted an enormous amount of attention. The psychology of the multitude is that it likes to go where others go. It figures, in the case of a city, that if there are sufficient attractions and opportunities to call for general comment there must be some solid reason for it. This is the case with Glendale. People here talk about it, become interested in the talk, come to the city and investigate and, finding a thriving community with every possible advantage both as a residential and a business community, they decide to locate here."

Mr. McCarthy is showing his faith in Glendale by opening two residence tracts the coming Sunday—one, "Eagle Glen Heights," in the Broadway section, and the other, "Roland Square," on Doran street. He is no stranger to Glendale, having developed the "Glendale Place" tract on the west side of Central avenue more than 15 years ago.

At a dinner party a noble guest told a story about a tiger he had shot. "Why don't you tell people that you are a good mechanic?" "And have my neighbors forever wanting me to come over and tinker with their cars?" I guess not."

DIAMONDS

A Woman is Judged by the Jewelry She Wears

—Personality is a social asset. Without it few people—especially women—can do justice to themselves.
—Diamonds—of quality—are the greatest personality goods in the world.

THE RE-MOUNTING OF YOUR DIAMOND

—The diamonds that have been worn for many years in the settings that had their vogue in the long ago can be transformed again into splendid articles of adornment that cannot fail to enhance the most favorable impressions and once more become the choicest of your possessions, bringing back the flash of joy and pleasure the same as the first time those eyes beheld them and called them their own.

—The diamond of itself cannot make the appearance which is desired without the setting. It would seem then most important that the proper setting be chosen as the harmony of colors must be given much careful consideration in order to secure full value of the beauty of the stone. If ugly and conflicting contrasts are used, much of the natural beauty of the stone will be lost.

—Thus it is that he who knows these things and hesitates not to tell the truth plainly, will render that service so essential in securing that which is best and most suitable.

—The mountings here illustrated are made in Platinum, Green Gold, or Green Gold and Platinum, as desired, or what will best harmonize with the tint or color shading of the diamond to be set. They assure the safety of the stone, are very well made and durable, most excellent in style and quite surprising as it may seem, they really make the diamonds appear to be much larger than they really are.

—It will give you the greatest pleasure to consult and advise with you regarding your diamonds and diamond jewelry.

—Your Diamond Jewelry inspected and cleaned free of charge.

HUTCHINSON OUT OF HIGH ELECTION

Withdrawal of Popular Youth Smooths Troubled Politics

Oil has been spread on the troubled waters of the high school politicians in regard to the election of school officers for the coming year by Paul Hutchinson withdrawing as candidate for student president. The election was originally to have been held yesterday, the student body voting for school president and other officers. A short time before the election an announcement was made that Paul Hutchinson, president of the school and candidate for re-election, would not run for that office again. The cabinet of the school, which is the governing body of the students, went into executive session at 10 a. m. yesterday and continued until 2 p. m. in an attempt to unravel the situation. It was suggested that the election of other student officials be held yesterday and the election of a student president be postponed until the matter of Hutchinson's eligibility as a candidate was settled. This met with the approval of certain bodies of the student organization, but the senior class objected and announced that either all officers would be elected at one election or there would be no election.

It was suggested by several members of the senior class that Hutchinson be run for president over the heads of the high school faculty. It was suggested that his name be written on the ballot by those who would vote for him. According to current report about the high school, this was suggested at a meeting of the senior class. Certain members of the class were strong for this method but cooler heads prevailed. The radicals were told that to write in the name of their candidate would be to waste their votes and rather than waste their votes they decided to cast their ballots for either Dale Wood or Lucy Strother.

The subsequent announcement by Hutchinson that he had withdrawn his name from the ballot cleared the atmosphere and plans were made for the holding of the election today. The school was placarded this morning with cards advising the student body to vote for the various candidates and there is an air of suppressed excitement prevalent among the students.

D. A. R. CHAPTER MEETS THURSDAY

The General Richard Gridley chapter, D. A. R., which meets the first Thursday of each month, had its most unusual session this week. Thirty members motored to Los Angeles for a visit to the Maternity College which has been the special benefactor of the chapter's charitable work for several years.

They were guests of Mrs. Baerhyte, president of the hospital board of directors. A brief business session was held at which a vote was taken to turn over to the hospital the last of the "mile of pennies" which the organization has been collecting the past three years and reducing at the rate of $250 per year. The contributions of the chapter were supplemented by a check from J. H. Braly for $85, otherwise it would not have been able to complete the obligation undertaken—the raising of $844.80, until the end of its chapter year in June.

Members were cheered by reports of improvement in the condition of their greatly beloved regent, Mrs. J. H. Braly, who has been seriously ill for some time. Announcement was made of the state D. A. R. convention to be held March 4 to 10 at the Alexandria hotel in Los Angeles when Mrs. Miner, president general of D. A. R. of the United States, will llar to the attitude felt in campaign headquarters just before a municipal election.

In announcing to the cabinet that he would withdraw his name as candidate for school president, Mr. Hutchinson said: "Everyone in the student body is familiar with these unfortunate conditions which have come up in connection with the election."

"I regret with all my heart the occurrence of the whole affair. I was running for the office because I had a definite policy which I wanted to put into effect, but smothering all desire for the office with your good in view I hereby present my resignation."

"I do not believe that I would have a successful administration. Seeing this is impossible I make this sacrifice in doing so I have the best interest of the whole school at heart as I did in running."

"I am representing no group. I have no selfish interests. I am still for the whole student body and the one who will be elected, heart and soul."

"SHE LOVES ME, SHE LOVES ME NOT," THIS MACHINE TELLS

That old "She loves me, she loves me not," is a romantic but unreliable method of determining whether a woman loves you, says Prof. Ransom Sutherland of Alabama. He is shown here demonstrating his electrically operated invention, the emotion meter. The meter, it is explained, is just like a woman's love—complex, easily destroyed and expensive. By measuring the blood pressure and respiration, the professor says, the meter tells whether the subject is angry, lying or lovable and loving.

be a special guest. In her honor many affairs have been planned such as a reception at the Mission Inn by the Riverside Chapter. Another day will be given to the ceremonial of presenting a flag to the battleship California at the Los Angeles harbor. A third event will be a visit to the tablet erected in Memorial Grove, Elysian park, for the twenty-two sons of Daughters of the American Revolution who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war. At this convention delegates and vice regent will be delegates and sessions will be open to all D. A. R. members.

Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward and Mrs. Lida Border were appointed delegates to the national convention to be held in Washington in April.

Tea was served by Mrs. Baerhyte and then members made a tour of inspection of the hospital which is now established in its new unit at 127 Utah street. They found 17 babies being cared for all under 11 days of age. The long hall of the institution was furnished by the Glendale chapter, other chapters furnishing the various bedrooms.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

CLEANING THE SICK ROOM

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

In the big white house beside the river all was a-furry with pre-Christmas house cleaning.

Mollie, the new little housemaid, was receiving lessons each day in the business of house cleaning, though, she declared, open-mouthed, that she could not see a grain of dust any place in the big shining house.

Mollie gasped in dismay when Mrs. Jones wrung her dusters from water that was black as ink almost, after once passing over the walls that looked so spotless. "Will you be doing the sick lady's room, ma'am?" asked Mollie after two days of house cleaning, during which time her mistress had done most of the actual cleaning and she had done the pleasant things, such as climbing step-ladders, hanging wreaths of holly on walls of spotless white.

All the More Reason for Cleanliness

"Grandma's room? Why, of course. All the more reason to keep it spotless and free from dust, because Grandma has to stay in it most of the time," explained Mrs. Jones kindly.

So they climbed the stairs and moved the smiling old invalid's bed into another room, until the great part of the extra cleaning was done. In the sick room Mrs. Jones told Mollie of the danger of dust to the sick, of its responsibility for obscure infections, of the throat and nose irritations so often set up by dust in the air breathed by a sick person.

Then, as Mollie hesitated over the choice of mops, her mistress explained that as the sick room was entirely white, they would use a broom wrapped in damp muslin. This was because an oil mop is so apt to brush against the white base board and stain it. "And mops are so dusty and doubtful, even M. mops. And I take care of them." So said Mrs. Jones, wringing clean muslin from clean, warm water and wiping the floor deftly.

More for Mollie to Learn In the invalid's bathroom, where all was white enamel and nickel and shining glass, Mollie was instructed to use a pure white soap to do the cleaning, because patent cleaners are so apt to roughen and dull enamelware and glass.

An hour passed, and the business of dusting the sick room was in progress. Mollie, anxious to please, was frowning as she rubbed surfaces energetically.

It was then that Mrs. Jones, taking the girl's duster, showed her how to remove dust with one firm, swift stroke, without vaguely passing the duster back and forth many times.

"In a sick room, as everywhere else, one must conserve one's strength and make each motion count. Save your time and energy by making one stroke do the work of three. Always remember about the seriousness of dust in the sick room, and its consequences."

Little Things Annoying

"Never flick a dusty rag about to appear busy. Move quietly and quickly, remembering that when one is ill, one is often annoyed by little mannerisms that are trivial when one is well. And when dusting a sick room bed don't forget that it has bars and parts that, while out of sight, collect dust which must be removed."

"Yes, ma'am," said Mollie. Then "Why do you open the windows wide, like that? Won't your mother catch cold when we move her bed back into the room?"

"Indeed, she will not 'catch cold,'" said Mrs. Jones. "The fresh air will refresh and stimulate her; it is so crisp and sunny. Sunshine and clean, cool air are the best medicine in the world. But a clean, spotlessly clean sick room is very good medicine, too," smiled Mrs. Jones, as they wheeled the invalid's bed into the fresh, sunny room.

Play-Acting

By JOHN BRECK

There was no visible reason why the little bob-cat should have been clawing his cautious way out that tree-trunk. At its best, a buckeye is a branchy thing to climb. This buckeye seemed fairly at its worst: the tall bank, rooted on hard clay, away until it leaned like hair of an ill-slung suspension bridge over the muddy torrent which snarled at the stones in the gorge below.

The little bob-cat snarled, too. His was a parlor perch, as well he knew. His absurd little black-tipped tail wriggled and squirmed as each fuzzy paw felt anxiously for a foothold. His ears blunt, not tufted as big brother lynx's are, lay flat against his neck, save when a prick-up betrayed his tension over the next move, accentuating the width of his jaws.

They bulged, full-tufted, on either side of a nose as shapeless as a pup's, giving him an air of chubby helplessness rather than one of bearded and masculine determination; the gangling awkwardness of his legs, too, bespoke immaturity. His was no lithe accuracy of night-rambling Tommy skipping blithely down the narrow edge of the backyard fence; he was just an overgrown gawk of a kitten who had made a false start and lacked either the nerve or the sense to turn around.

Yet, had he? Trembling, he dragged himself across one of those interfering branches, crouched, and craned his neck between his clutching paws to peer down in wide-eyed awe. Then those eyes fixed, narrowed into slits; his sides heaved; his sprawl somehow became a spring, which landed him trippingly across the chasm. Why, then, should he go leaping down the bank, across the stream, on low stepping-stones and a log, and clamber back to the buckeye again.

In his catfish mind was he Nemesis overtaking some credulous quail who might think it a safe place for roosting? Did that backward-flashing glance mean some imaginary enemy was pursuing him—a thwarted wolf, or the dread cougar herself, whom our hero had robbed of its game? Or old Shep, bent on avenging some kidnapped chicken? Quite plainly this was rehearsal for some wild west thrills of his very own, the self-same kind our youngsters delight in. Only he was dramatist, actor, and audience all in one. The very danger lent gusto to his solitary game. "Ur-r-r-r-r-r!" he growled, flinging himself through space a second time. "Catch me who can!" Oh, I tell you, it was exciting!

The Once Over

THE MOVIES, HAYS AND THE HARDING CABINET

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The first thing the movie magazines did after getting the acceptance of Will Hays to become FILMMASTER GENERAL was to insure his life for $2,000,000.

That shows what they think of his chances!

The biggest fight scene ever staged in the movie world may come when the new commissioner tries to do something the movie men don't like. Mr. Hays's safety depends upon whether they give him time for rehearsals.

Before accepting the offer of $150,000 a year Mr. Hays had a long conference with President Harding. The president wanted to know why the movie men hadn't first made him the offer. Mr. Harding will now have to work two years for the same salary his former postmaster general got in one.

"I would rather be right than be president," said a famous American. "I would rather be Hays than be either," said a leading financier today.

The real reason for the selection of Mr. Hays was revealed today. The movies had been criticized so much for low-brow stuff that the magnates decided to hire the country's greatest man of letters.

The report that Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, had been offered a high commission-ship of the National Association of Jockey Clubs, at a salary of 10 per cent of all race track wagers, had not been verified at press time.

Secretary Denby of the navy department refused to affirm or deny a rumor that he had been offered the post of Imperial Klegale of the United Circus Tentmen, Canvasmen and Seal Feeders Association.

President Harding was visibly alarmed over the prospect of his paying positions. "Of course, I like to see the boys get ahead and all that sort of thing, but I shouldn't think they'd all want to walk out and leave me as the only member of the administration still working for a small salary like $75,000 a year," he said.

Commissioner Hays announced his first three rulings as film-master general today.

Jacob Solenpfeffer, president of the Scandal Screens, Inc., was suspended until Oct. 1 for presenting a picture showing a Roman arena scene in which all the lions wore bobbed manes. This is considered immoral. Solenpfeffer is the same man who recently aroused the censors by running an automobile film showing a stripped chassis.

He took his suspension philosophically. "I don't care," he said. "Business is rotten this year, anyhow."

Simon Yudin, art director of Banal Films company, was ordered to keep out of Hollywood for nine months. Yudin was responsible for an eight-reel super-production in which there was not a single scene in which the heroine was shown knitting a pair of baby socks while her young husband stood behind her wondering what it could possibly mean. He also allowed the picture to finish without the happy couple silhouetted against an oversized moon. Both things violate every rule of the movie picture game.

John Barrymore was warned by the commissioner that he must show the left side of his face in his next picture. John has been showing only the right side of his Profile Series. "It is only fair to you that you refute the growing belief of movie fans that your face has no left side," said Mr. Hays.

When You Play

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc. (Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

You are tempted to smile as you observe the ardor with which children engage in their play activities. Whatever the game they happen to select, it claims their undivided attention.

While playing it they have no thought for other things. It is as though they were saying to themselves, "There is nothing quite so important as the game in which I am now taking part." Their concentration on their games is really remarkable.

It may also seem amusing to you in the light of your larger experience. "These little ones," you perhaps reflect, "have a great deal to learn regarding relative values. The time will come when they will appreciate how unimportant are the games which now so delight them."

Yet is it not possible that the children would lose much if their games did not hold their interest as they do?

Nay, is it not possible that you yourself have lost much through permitting yourself to "outgrow" your fervor for games?

You still play games, you assure me. You are well aware of their helpfulness as means of mental recreation. You are properly mindful of the adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Yes, but do you really forget your work in your play?

That is the essential thing. That is one of the prime purposes of play. And no one can really forget his work in his play unless he has retained—or regained—his childhood zest for games.

With this zest gone, the mind, no matter what the game chosen, will continually slip back to the work one should temporarily forget. Which means that the brain cells required for that work cannot possibly obtain sufficient rest.

Notice what happens in the case of those among your acquaintances who, being conspicuously hard workers, play much as children do, in the sense that they zestfully concentrate on their games.

The energy that they expend on their games does not seem to lessen in the slightest their working power. On the contrary, it seems to, and it actually does, make them more fit for work. This because their complete forgetfulness of work during play assists to mental reinvigoration.

Take a hint from their experience and from the play activities of your children. Accustom yourself once more to play ardently, as assuredly you did when you, too, were a child.

It will profit you.

GOING UP HIGH.

TACOMA, Feb. 3.—Prepared to risk life and limb in attempt to scale the snow-covered crest of Mt. Ranier, 14,408 feet above sea level, Jacques Bergues and Jean Jacques Landry, European mountain climbers, left here today with a score of local mountaineers and newspaper correspondents on the first leg of their journey.

A clergyman discovered a trouser button in the collection plate one Sunday morning.

In the evening, when he ascended the pulpit, he announced: "I wish to remind you that there will be a collection at the close of the service. The text I have chosen for this evening's sermon is, 'Tend your hearts and not your garments.'"

Listening in on Eve

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

I have always been proud of the fact that I can hem linen as exquisitely as the best French needlewomen. Although I hated it at the time, I am now grateful that Aunt Rachel insisted on my learning to hem and make beautiful buttonholes when I was a little girl. She said those were accomplishments every gentleman should have, and as she paid me for acceptable work in $5 gold pieces, I managed to endure the many weary hours of instruction at her knee.

"Lucile," said Aunt Rachel to me about a month ago, "I'm sure you will wish to do something for your dear Penny." Penny is her name for her companion, Miss Pen-nystone, who is surprising us all by being married.

"Of course, aunty, dear," I responded cordially, though I'm not especially keen on Penny. "What shall I buy her?"

"I should suggest," laughed Aunt Rachel pleasantly, "that you don't buy her anything, but lend her some of your talents. I am supplying her with table linen. Suppose you hem at least some of it."

I could not refuse and soon went to work on a really gorgeous set of dinner napkins.

"Good gracious, mother, why don't we have any decent linen?" I asked one day when I was helping set the table for a luncheon I was giving to the Dix Amies girls.

"It's so frightfully dear now," said mother. "There's the snowflake pattern you mentioned as being worn. I hate to have my friends think we are too poverty-stricken to have decent napkins. Fortunately, I had that set done, and you know, linen always looks better after it's ironed more than once. I'm going to have Tilly do them up today, because I must take them over to Aunt Rachel tomorrow."

"Tilly can't do them up today, Lucile. It's not fair to pile on extra work on cleaning day. You can explain to Aunt Rachel."

How simple mother is sometimes! Explain to Aunt Rachel! Not I! I took the napkins to an excellent laundry and told the clerk they must be done within twenty-four hours, which they were. I was charmed to see how glossy and satiny they looked packed in the neat box provided by the laundry, and I set forth with them to Aunt Rachel's with great pride.

"You open the package, Penny dear," said Aunt Rachel when I gave the box to her. "See what Lucile has done for you."

"Oh, how wonderful they look!" she exclaimed, rapturously, and then unfolding one, she gave a sudden scream.

"What is the matter?" asked Aunt Rachel anxiously.

"Just look at this," she said tearfully, and she displayed a corner of a napkin with my initials inked in.

"Oh, dear, how stupid of that man in the laundry. He should be shot at sunrise," I said. "He ought to have seen the embroidered letters."

"And every one is marked in this awful indelible ink!" cried Penny.

"I don't see why you sent them to a laundry," said Aunt Rachel, "when you know your faithful Tilly does up linen so perfectly. Lucile, of course I couldn't tell her why I sent them to a laundry, but I told her that I thought such a good place as the X. Y. Z. laundry would turn them out perfectly, and that I was awfully sorry, but hoped the ink could be taken out with an eradicator."

"Not likely," she said, shortly, and I, pleading an engagement, left before the matter could be discussed further. In the afternoon Aunt Rachel phoned mother about it, and mother was so tactless as to tell her that she greatly regretted that I had taken the liberty of using the napkins. How could mother be so inept? Of course Aunt Rachel was highly indignant, and she sent me word that I need do no more hemming on Penny's linen. Neither she nor Penny has thanked me or expressed the least gratitude for the many stitches I took in those napkins.

Fashions for Americans

For the girl of 14 or 15 years the little evening frock shown in the sketch would be charming. It combines taffeta in a pastel shade, such as pink, pale green, yellow, or blue, with a chiffon in self or contrasting color. The sheer fabric forms the bodice and the skirt, which is finished with an uneven line at the hem. A flower garland and a little matching flower placed on the shoulder supply the trimming touches. The dress, which fastens in the center back, is so simple that it would be very easy to make.

The long waist featured on this dress is particularly good for the young girl whose figure is not developed, and the combination of chiffon with taffeta makes a most charming little mid-season or early spring dinner or dancing frock.

An early spring taffeta street frock for a young girl, seen recently, featured a slightly draped waist of the hip length style, to which was attached a skirt consisting of three rows of taffeta petals picoté at the edges. A very narrow self fabric ruffle, accordion-pleated, in scallops or "shells" finished the round neck and three-quarter sleeves.

One smart navy taffeta frock, with tight bodice reaching to the normal waist line, and smartly flared skirt, was trimmed about the neck and the short, slashed sleeves with narrow bands of bright red taffeta pft on like rick-rack braid. Another clever "little" frock for a young girl, also showing the tight bodice and full skirt, had the skirt trimmed at either side, across the hips, with several rows of narrow self fabric accordion-pleated ruffles, the same finish being given the neck and sleeves.

MONTH LONG STORE DEEP IS SATISFIED WITH JOB

Company Will Sell Bargains From Whole Stock

A mammoth, price-smashing sale of furniture and house furnishings is being put on by the Page Furniture company, 306-8 East Broadway. This sale will continue throughout the entire month of February. The management of this establishment is determined to make February the biggest month since starting business in Glendale and to do this the prices of everything in the store have been cut way down. The figures at which the various pieces of furniture are being sold represent a very narrow margin of profit.

"In order to take advantage of quantity buying," said Mr. Page this morning, "we have set $400,000 as a sales record for 1922. We intend to do a much larger volume of business this year than in 1921, and we intend to do that business on a smaller margin of profit than ever before. This means that Glendale people will receive the benefit of our reduced prices. We intend to do more business in 1922 than any furniture store in Glendale. That is saying a great deal, but just watch us grow."

Burbank News

On February 13 the Yeoman lodge of this city will initiate a large class into the order. The team from Pasadena will be present and do the work, and an event of much importance in this lodge is looked forward to by every member.

The excellent shoe store which has been operated by H. A. Bachrodt has been sold to A. Heberling and N. E. Greim, both of whom are here from Warrensburg, Missouri. Mr. Bachrodt and his mother, Mrs. H. C. Bachrodt, who have been here a number of months, expect to return to Iowa where they have business interests.

Messrs. Heberling and Greim, who have been in the shoe manufacturing and retailing business for many years in the east, are coming to Burbank to make their home.

The Valley Cafe has just changed proprietors and Burbank loses two agreeable families by the departure of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Saylor, but in losing them the city gains W. C. Simmons, who comes recommended as a most desirable citizen and an experienced restaurant man. Mr. and Mrs. Clark expect to go to Berkeley where they will visit Mrs. Clark's relatives for a time. Mr. and Mrs. Saylor think they will go to Los Angeles for an indefinite period.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Moore of Tenth street and Angeleno avenue left Monday night for a three months trip in the east, but they took an unusual route. Their journey began from San Pedro and will proceed through the Panama canal to New York, and in this journey they also digressed from the usual plan, for instead of taking a fast boat they chose a freighter, and while they will not have the accommodations of a swifter vessel they will have the greater opportunity of seeing more as they travel and stop at more ports.

Lieut. C. W. Coryell with his wife and baby were guests over Sunday of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Coryell, 505 Orange Grove avenue. Lieut. Coryell is a civil engineer in the employ of the government at San Diego.

A few old-time friends went last Wednesday to the home of Mrs. Martin Pupka at Third and Olive streets, in commemoration of 83rd birthday anniversary. The occasion was a very happy one and

Ernie Olson Prefers the Greasy Side of Speeding

There is one racing mechanic who has no desire to ever become a speed king. Ernie Olson, the boy who rides with Jimmy Murphy on the champion Duesenberg, is content with his lot, and prefers to share honors with the international champion rather than go out in competition with the monarchs of the speed profession.

A good mechanic is highly essential to the success of any driver. On many occasions Olson has proved his worth to Murphy and aided Jimmy to win, where another mechanic with less experience would have booted the ball.

In Murphy's last race he was just ahead of De Palma when a tire went flat. The car started for the top rail, Murphy put all of his 133 pounds against the wheel in an effort to keep away from the top but still he crept toward the rail. Like a flash Olson knew what had happened. He raised his hand and signalled to De Palma. Instead of the Ballot going in between the Duesenberg and the rail, De Palma went down the course and passed Jimmy on the inside.

Quick thinking and immediate action make Olson one of the greatest of all race mechanics, and while Murphy has encouraged him to become a driver, he is happy to have him as his mechanic and he gives him full credit for his assistance in his many speed battles.

much enjoyed by Mrs. Pupka as well as the guests who, through great regard and respect, were pleased to express it. Refreshments were served and a pleasant, conversational time enjoyed.

Mrs. Herbert Dodge of Verdugo avenue, who was quite ill last week, is improved. Two daughters living in Los Angeles came out to be with her.

Mrs. Hill of San Diego is the guest of her brother, Harry Blair of Cypress avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Roskum of Santa Anita avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Shedd of Beatrice, Neb., were the dinner guests Tuesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hall of Tujunga avenue. Mrs. Shedd is a sister of Mr. Hall.

On Wednesday, Mrs. C. F. Greenman, auditor of the Woman's club, met with Mrs. Griswold, treasurer of the club, at the latter's home on Fifth street near Angeleno avenue, when the two went over the club's books and audited the work for the past six months.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We desire to announce to the public that our new, modern plant is now in operation, and that we are turning out a considerable number of CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE every day.

Our first Tile made go to the Burd Cookie Company's new building, north of the City Hall on Howard Street, Glendale. We invite you to see this new building unit (new to the Pacific Coast) as it is placed in the wall, and inspect our plant as well. Visitors are always welcome.

The second order of Tile goes to a job on Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, to a party who has been waiting patiently more than ninety days for same. The third order goes to a Job in Lankershim. These Jobs will take our output for the next thirty days. While we expect to do some business in Hollywood and San Fernando Valley, we shall give preference to business in this vicinity.

CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE has been approved for use within the FIRE DISTRICT of Glendale. This is recognition of its superior qualities over many other building materials. They may be used for any kind of a building, store buildings, residences, garages, cellars, foundations, etc.

CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE is a "WET-MIX" POURED CONCRETE unit, made in the following sizes: For 8-inch Wall, 6 x 8 x 16. Also halves and special Jamb Tile: For 6-inch Wall, 6 x 8 x 13. Being made the "WET-MIX" process, the density of the unit makes a WATER-PROOF Wall, and is a great deal stronger than any other building unit on the market. It is the ideal wall to stucco over, for stucco naturally adheres to concrete, and a CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE Wall will not WARP OR BUCKLE. CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE construction costs about the same as lumber in the beginning, but it is much cheaper in the long run, for there is no further upkeep. A house built of CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE will be from 10 to 15 degrees cooler in summer and warmer in winter. There are many other advantages of CONCRETE HOLLOW TILE over other building materials, but we haven't the space to enumerate them here.

We are booking bonafide orders for future deliveries, 30, 60 and 90 days. The sooner your order is placed, the sooner you can get delivery. We will shortly put on a night shift in an effort to keep up with the demand for our product.

We desire to express our appreciation to the City Officials, the Chamber of Commerce, and others of Glendale, who have given us such a cordial welcome. We believe that Glendale IS NOW the best small City in the world, and we believe just as strongly in its future.

MRS. BICKER IS INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Wife of Burbank Pastor and Her Father-in-Law
in Auto Crash

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—Rev. E. E. Bicker, pastor of the Holiness church, and family, have suffered a very grave misfortune in the serious injuries received in an automobile accident of which they were the victims, late Sunday afternoon, as they were driving in Los Angeles. As a result of the crash, Mrs. Bicker sustained a broken pelvis bone and serious internal injuries; S. F. Bicker, father of Rev. Bicker, of Redlands, was injured in the back and hips, and his wife suffered a broken collar bone. The other occupants of the car were not injured. The three were taken at once to the receiving hospital. Monday morning Mrs. S. F. Bicker was brought here to her son's home, which adjoins the church on the corner of First street and Angeleno avenue. In the afternoon Mrs. E. E. Bicker and S. F. Bicker were brought home.

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock at the intersection of Fifth and Crocker streets, Los Angeles, when the Bicker car was run into sideways by a big automobile driven by city policeman Baumgarten, whose Buick car was badly damaged in front.

The pastor of the Holiness church and his wife are most highly esteemed by every member of the congregation and all who know them, and are worthy of every attention their friends can give them. Some have already assisted with money, bedding and other things which are needed, and upon inquiry it was learned that financial or other assistance would be thankfully received by the family. Rev. Bicker, as with all other Holiness pastors, receives

BURBANK OPENS BUILDING YEAR

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—It was stated in this paper a few days ago that the indications were that January was going to be a good month for this growing city in the matter of building, and now it is known as a certainty, and this in spite of the fact that January is generally the driest month in the year in the construction line.

Building Inspector Bond totals the permits to a figure of $67,815. Last January the month's record was $26,260, which is some difference, with the difference all on the up-hill side. This amount was taken out in 57 permits, 19 of which were for $1000 and up to $5000, which was the largest amount recorded.

no salary, and has from the congregation only what it can contribute, and while, as a class, they are free givers, this congregation is a small one.

Martin Kosen of San Pedro was a week-end visitor of Pat Walker on Angeleno avenue.

EAGLE ROCK IS PLANNING FOR ITS SEWER

Chamber of Commerce
Decides to Wait on
Culver City Plans

EAGLE ROCK, Feb. 3.—There was a large attendance at the monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening, notices having been sent out that several important matters in the way of city improvements would be discussed. President Miller announced that the secretary, C. L. Suits, is ill and a secretary pro tem was appointed. Dr. Clements was the first speaker and from an intimate knowledge of sewage questions suggested that Eagle Rock do nothing in the matter of a sewer until Culver City carries her plan through and it is evident that Los Angeles will follow up her present plans. A metropolitan proposition might be worked out in which Glendale and Eagle Rock could be included. He thinks Glendale is liable to an injunction by the city of Los Angeles against the disposal of activated water as intended. At the recent meeting in Pasadena, which he attended, there was talk of bringing all the suburban communities of Los Angeles together to co-operate in the disposal of sewage and other things. He mentioned new routes between Pasadena and Los Angeles, shortening the distance, that are under consideration and would relieve the traffic congestion on North Broadway and on Colorado boulevard, and he advocated not only as a convenience to the public but as an economy for the Los Angeles Railway company a belt line through Eagle Rock avenue connecting with the Eagle Rock City line at its Townsend terminus, where long stops are now made between service. On motion a committee of three is to be appointed by the executive board to work in connection with the public utilities committee as circumstances may be advisable. The matter of lights was then brought up. The cost of three electric signs to be placed at the entrance of the city were stated. H. E. Barnum advocated a quick start on needed improvements and said the real estate men, now so numerous in Eagle Rock and all apparently making money, ought to be willing to subscribe for publicity and he would himself contribute liberally to that end. A motion for the publicity committee to be empowered to solicit subscriptions toward the expense of installing the signs was carried. Mr. Maxson, who gathered facts and estimates with regard to street lights and presented them to the chamber a couple of months ago as a member of the lighting committee, said his district of the city was willing to meet the expense of installing and maintaining lights in its own section. City Trustee Jesse H. Taylor stated that it would cost $6000 or $7000 a year for the upkeep of lights throughout the city and there was no money in the treasury.

There was quite a long discussion about opening Hill avenue eastward to Colorado boulevard and westward to Broadway, that the public might realize the beauty of that street and obtain the views of the valley which are unsuspected by those passing through the present thoroughfares.

BURBANK C. OF C. INCORPORATES MEMBERSHIP

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—The Burbank chamber of commerce is now an incorporated institution. In the past few months it has developed from a disorganized, and in some quarters, a discredited enterprise into a growing, interesting and interested concern which is commanding the respect and support of the leading citizens of this city. It has been reorganized, a new directorate elected, and largely through the efforts and management of R. W. Colburn who came here last fall as executive secretary, the chamber has assumed new life and spirit. One by one the former members have returned to its ranks and new ones have been added as they saw that the chamber was practically a new body and that it was working wisely and by modern methods for the upbuilding and improvement of Burbank and with the best interests of the city always in view.

The incorporation was made with a $20,000 building clause. The number of shares into which it is divided is two hundred with a par value of $100 each. Five of the directors elected, which it was incorporated constitute the committee of the corporation to have control and management of the funds paid in for shares of stock subscribed and to be known as the building fund of the corporation, and the income derived therefrom. The five constituting this building committee are J. H. Barnum, E. J. Jackson, A. C. Fillbaugh, Chas. H. Kline, Margaret D. Yale. The other directors are C. W. Denhart, J. N. Van Meter, P. A. Farley, Ed. Pomeroy, J. B. Moreland, W. P. Coffman and L. F. Collins.

The following are the incorporators: J. H. Barnum, E. J. Jackson, A. C. Fillbaugh, C. W. Denhart, P. A. Farley, J. N. Van Meter, Ed. Pomeroy, W. P. Coffman, J. B. Moreland, L. F. Collins, J. C. Crawford, E. Herrmann, D. B. Cummings, Charlotte Hannah Warner, Theodora A. Sinclair, W. J. Riley, F. S. Webster, J. B. Wetterauer, Margaret D. Yale and Floyd A. Neffeler.

Among those who are reading the classified ads every day are the men who have positions to offer to capable workers, at good pay.

HOW SOME FOLKS GOT ABOARD THE ARK

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Yes, our folks were fast asleep when Mister Noah's funny old ark went bumping, clumping, off its hill, scratching its sides on the stumps of all the trees they had cut down to build it with," said Dr. Muskrat, with a twinkle in his eye. He was talking especially to Ripple Beaver and the Widow Squirrel.

"Didn't they miss us?" asked the widow.

"Bless you, no!" he grinned back. "They had plenty of us on board. More than they wanted. For my ancestors in those days were the same as Great-grandfather Fieldmouse's, and yours were very much like Snoot Woodchuck is today."

"How about mine?" Ripple wanted to know.

"The selfsame ones as the widows'. You two are cousins."

Don't tell that's anything you didn't know."

He Was Talking Especially to Ripple Beaver and Widow Squirrel

"We didn't. We didn't," cho-used both the ladies. "How perfectly lovely to find it out. Please, please go on."

"Well, my mouse ancestors were sure to be aboard because Mister Noah's family had been living there for some time. And he'd been laying in his stores. And where there's anything to eat there are mice to eat it. My folks were comfortably nested down just outside of a knothole leading into the grain bin. But they kept mighty still, so nobody'd find out there were more than two of them."

"Your folks were aboard because long before they began really to get the stalls filled, Noah's son, Shem, caught one for his little boy to play with. But it didn't like being a plaything, so it ran away and hid in the bottom of the woodpile, 'way deep down under the lowest deck. Of course Shem's baby cried when he found it was gone, so his daddy went out and caught him another one. That was easier than trying to find the first down in that awful clutter below decks."

"And what happened to that?" "Oh, it burrowed under the haystack they had all piled up between the rack of bird perches and the women's cabin. It ate all the clover blossoms it came to until it felt so fat and full it fell asleep and forgot to come out again for ever and ever so long."

"On, by that time Noah was letting the dog sleep on deck to look after things. So the baby had him to play with. And it was starting in to rain, so there were

BURBANK STATE BANK TO OPEN

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—On February 14 the State bank of Burbank will have opening day, when they will greet the public in their beautiful new building and take pleasure in showing the offices and equipment to all prospective patrons and everyone who may call. The details of the program for this event have not been decided upon as yet.

The counters and interior finishings are in mahogany and are being installed now. Across the rear of the main room is a wide balcony. One end of this will be used as a directors' room and later the other end will be used for the bookkeeping department.

BURBANK DOCTOR HAD NO LICENSE

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—At 10 o'clock Friday morning in Judge Reeve's court in Los Angeles, Dr. Jennie Burwash will be tried on the charge of practicing her profession without a license. Dr. Burwash does not seem greatly alarmed over the forthcoming trial. She says she was tried at Lankershim and acquitted.

Dr. R. M. Attwater, who was recently tried on the same charge, is again cited to appear before Justice Strang of Pasadena Monday afternoon.

Miss Louise Dietzel of Los Angeles has taken a stenographic position in the office of Mrs. Margaret D. Yale.

Mrs. Day, formerly Mrs. Hale, of Tujunga avenue, and a long-time and well-known resident of Burbank suffered a stroke of paralysis quite recently.

One battleship and a few smaller fighting craft are what constitute what remains of the once powerful German navy. That battleship is the Hanover, which is shown in the above photograph.

Kitchen Is Shrine to the Women of India

Contrary to the generally accepted belief in this part of the world, the women of India equal their occidental sisters in average intelligence, and in general culture, courtesy and habits of meditation they are far superior. This is a sweeping statement, but after living among the Hindu women for many months and returning to an upturned western world, I am convinced, writes Therese Pernoud.

The Hindu woman's life is divided between two never ending tasks, the care of her home and the practice of her religious duties. She is both a cloistered nun and a model housewife. The two tasks merge into one in the sense that all of her household duties are religious rites. The kitchen is for her a sacred spot. Not every one may enter there. Not every one may touch the utensils used in preparing the food. One must uncover on entering and it is rarely that a cook who is a stranger to the family is permitted to prepare meals. It is a question of the loss of one's caste. The Hindus say that the food prepared by a member of the family is of superior quality. They tremble lest a cook whose health is not perfect, or even whose soul is impure, may contaminate the general health. The custom of shaking hands is rare in India.

Washing, dressing, eating and drinking are all done according to a prescribed ritual. In fact, all Hindu acts and habits are commanded and animated by their religion. I do not know what humorist has said that the Hindus even sin religiously. The worship of the gods is almost constant. On the days when the Hindu woman is not satisfied to offer her homage to the divinities which repose in the most sacred corner of the kitchen, she must go to her favorite temple.

Does one wish to know the details of the day of an "upper class" Hindu woman? Here they are as written by one of them: "She rises early before sunrise and accompanies her mother to the river to bathe and perform her morning devotions in one of the numerous temples beside the river. A bell hanging by the door is rung as they enter the temple to apprise the god of their arrival. They bow humbly before the idol with folded hands, put some clarified butter in the little lamp that is kept constantly burning before it, repeat a certain number of prayers, pour some water over it, go round it a certain number of times, and then make another low bow to it before leaving the temple. The burden of a married woman's prayer is that her husband and children should be kept in health and strength and that she may die before her husband; and that of an unmarried girl is that she may have a good husband and a happy home.

"The rest of the day is spent by the mother and daughters in various household duties, such as sweeping the house, scouring the brass and silver pots and pans till they shine, cooking the midday meal, bathing and feeding the children, and sending them to school, serving the men in the house with their food before they go to their various duties, having their own meals in the kitchen and then cleansing the kitchen and utensils used.

"The women are never free until the afternoon and even then one rarely finds a high class Hindu woman idle; one generally sees her seated on the veranda cleaning grain which has to be stored for the year in special receptacles. Friends drop in carrying baskets or trays of grain and sit on the veranda beside her, exchanging news and discussing the doings of their neighbors. Very soon it is time for the evening meal to be prepared. Children come hungry from the school and have to be fed and put to bed. The men have their food and retire to their sitting rooms or to the village hall and the mothers sit and watch their daughters playing games in the garden or listen to them as they sing about the moon, the flowers, or the doings of Krishna, one of the favorite Hindu incarnations."

The woman of the country is not so secluded as is the woman of the city. She follows her husband in the fields, goes and comes in the village. She is happy if there is no famine or epidemic, or if she can conjure the evil spirits by tracing each evening geometrical figures in front of her home, or if she can save a few cents and add to her already abundant collection of bracelets.

The chief problem, almost the entire problem, with the women of India of all classes is that, to improve her social status that must free herself from the strongest religious and social bonds that a woman can know. There is an increasing desire for change, but the feminist movement in India must proceed slowly and very carefully in order to avoid a tremendous social unrest.

EDITORIALS

"Editor Glendale Daily Press: "Permit me to congratulate your paper and Mr. Kemper Campbell for the courage displayed in the article on public utilities in your issue of Friday, January 31, 1922.

"If public-spirited men and newspapers would write more on such matters our government would soon be back in the hands of the people, where it belongs. "I regret I am not sufficiently familiar with conditions and politics at this writing, but I am acquiring information and will be heard from.

"I am a taxpayer, commuter and father of a family, but still have some time and energy to spare to contribute to a welfare movement to enable Glendale to enjoy her assured prosperity unhampered.

LA CRESCENTA NEWS AND NOTES

LA CRESCENTA, Feb. 3.—H. S. Bissell of "Hi Up" ranch, reports the rainfall during the last storm as 3 inches, making a total of 26.56 inches for this season.

C. E. Culberson has been appointed school trustee to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mrs. E. Angier. Other members of the board are H. A. Baldrige and Dr. B. H. Smith. Madame Finnet of Alhambra, who has visited La Crescenta many times and always desirous of owning a home here, has purchased a half acre and cottage on Montrose avenue, near Los Angeles, owned by Charles Bowden.

Mesdames C. E. Culberson, H. Bastable, F. H. Anderson, E. N. Nettleton, C. Rohne, J. S. Colin, George Dunlop and M. Adams were luncheon guests of Mrs. S. Goddard of La Canada yesterday.

At the end of 1920 only 42 per cent of a total of 132 blast furnaces were in operation in Sweden, or only 31.8 per cent. The cause of this closing down is due to the fact that the market price of pig iron is not sufficient to meet operating expenses.

"Will You Excuse It, Please— There Is No One on the Line Now"

Mistakes are bound to happen. We all make them. When your telephone bell rings and the operator says, "Will you excuse it please, there is no one on the line now," she is not responsible for your annoyance and inconvenience.

The occasion for the use of the phrase most frequently arises when the called party is slow to answer—the calling subscriber does not wait and hangs up his telephone.

Many times daily telephone users call wrong numbers—use incorrect prefixes, such as "Main" for "Market"—transpose figures, such as 5342 for 5432. Suddenly realizing their mistakes, they hang up their telephone.

Without fault or negligence on her part the telephone operator is left to explain, and the sentence first quoted is that adopted as most briefly and concisely covering the situation.

Truths in Epigram

Party honesty is party expediency.—Cleveland (1837-1908).
Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom.—Pitt (1708-1778).
On their own merits modest men are dumb.—Colman (1762-1836).
Diffused knowledge immortalizes itself.—Mackintosh (1765-1832).

GOOD SENSE IN RANCHING

The government estimates place the loss to the citrus growers in the recent heavy freeze at from 30 to 50 per cent of their crop. This will be compensated for to some extent in naturally higher prices, but that is not compensatory wholly, for there will be a small crop and a high price and that means loss to the consumer as well as to the producer. It is a better all around condition when there is a good crop at only a fair price.

Frost has to be taken into account in citrus growing, as has been proven by the damaging freezes of 1913 and 1922. Though nearly ten years apart, there is loss enough to hurt, even over that extensive a period. It means considerable hardship to growers, even to those best able financially to bear it.

The farmer in the sections where there is hail provides against complete loss with insurance. There is insurance against fire and tornado—in fact, against pretty much every one of the natural hazards. It would seem the wise citrus grower would set aside each year a part of his earnings or profits against such a hardship as comes this year. It is done in every other line of business, as far as hardship or hazard can be foreseen. Frost is a certain hazard. A sinking fund set off each year to tide over a period of leanness would mean a comfortable assurance of survival until the next normal crop.

PROHIBITION

There is a good deal of loose talk about prohibition, and a good deal of loosely printed propaganda, the aim of which is to make people believe that there is more drinking than there was before we had prohibition. This, of course, is to be dismissed with the simple statement that it is not true.

There is less drinking than there was before we had prohibition, as any one with even a little brain must know. For the price of liquor today is high and the quality of much of it bad, and there are not places in every city block where it is dispensed.

Industrial reports show that conditions are better than before the prohibition law was enacted. And the consumption of liquor will grow less as time goes by. The notion of personal liberty is being exploded. It is impossible, of course, to keep persons from killing themselves with home brew or wood alcohol. But, unfortunately, we have no record of all those who in the old days killed themselves by a slower process with good old fashioned stuff.

It is not to be expected that a business with the enormous profits of the whisky business will go without its propagandists. But it is wise not to be deceived by the propaganda. The appeal to "personal freedom" is bosh. The data are unsound. The statistics are unreliable. The whole publicity agencies of the whisky men are colored with fraud and a desire for a return to enormous profits.

Even the propagandists admit the saloon was evil. Well, if the saloon was evil, what made it evil? The sale of whisky, of course. So the sale of whisky, legalized by law, will be evil whether there is a saloon to sell it or not.

There is a generation growing up and there are generations to be born that will benefit by the prohibition of liquor. If substantial advantage comes to them, the present generation may well forego some of its "personal liberty."

Propaganda is always propaganda. And there are always reasons for it. There is a reason for all the whisky propaganda. That reason is profit. And profit at the cost of human happiness is not a good reason.

SNOW BOUND IN CALIFORNIA

It is indeed strange sounding stuff, this account of the relief of automobile parties in California by means of sledges and snowshoes, and the suggestions of relief by aeroplanes if other means fail. And people not informed may wonder whether this talk of California's winter weather has not been all fiction, when travelers are snowbound and unable to reach food and shelter.

But it must be remembered that California has many phases and the mountain phase is one of them, and that when it is sunny and warm in the valleys, there may be a deep mantle of snow on mountain peaks. And when it rains in the valleys there is likely to be a stiff snow a mile higher up in the air.

So it is all very readily explainable, with the suggestion that mountain roads are good things to keep away from in stormy weather. For the snow comes down with all the vigor and steadiness of the eastern climate, and with the difference that roads are narrow and precipitous and dangerous in mountain fastnesses.

PHILANTHROPY

There are many ways to what may be termed philanthropy, from the way of the man who gives the vagrant a quarter to buy a meal to that of the man who endows a university or creates a foundation for the common good. The minds of men and women operate along various lines in providing what they deem to be benefactions. Some like to see the immediate and direct result of the relieving of distress, the personal giving of money or goods, the lifting of burdens. And of course to relieve distress and lift burdens is a very splendid and praiseworthy thing to do. Just as it is good to give the quarter to the man who is hungry. But the relieving of immediate distress and the giving of the quarter is not enough, in the mind of the person who sees beyond temporary need and its relief. Individual benefaction must be followed with steps to rehabilitate the individual or to find him work and to make him self supporting. For personal benevolence, too long continued, makes for weakness on the part of the recipient, rather than strength.

The greatest philanthropy therefore is that which makes the most people well, strong, happy and able to work, and that affects most people favorably. An institution of learning that makes for broader minds, higher ideals and deeper purpose is a great thing. To encourage that is wise, and to endow it is a benefaction that in the end reaches into the lives of thousands or hundreds of thousands and illumines them for good. To establish a foundation that will help to prevent disease and untimely death, and that will make for courage and health and strength is to do a very great thing. It is better to help a thousand men become self supporting and spirited than it is to provide a thousand holiday dinners, delightful as it is to do the latter.

So there should be a little of the two spirits in real beneficence. But the abiding spirit is the one that goes on and on from the source, ever widening the stream of usefulness and strength. Pasadena a few days ago witnessed the dedication of a great building to be devoted to the processes of scientific research, and in the end to give many young men greater opportunity. To the giver of this building, Dr. Norman Bridge of Los Angeles, the community owes a just debt of gratitude and appreciation. It was a far-sighted vision that inspired the gift and it is one of those constructive benefactions of which society stands in need and for which it must have a sense of continuing obligation.

STRANGE REASONING

This is a strange world. The reasoning of persons is often inexplicable. Take the case of a motor car salesman in a not distant city. Confronted with debt that he could not meet, and with a failure of resources that he claimed to own and did not have, he planned suicide, and carried it out so that it might appear to have been murder, to insure the collection of a life insurance policy upon his life that his family might benefit.

Rather a gruesome plot, you will say, and truly enough it was. But had the unfortunate individual merely admitted that he had no resources, confessed his inability to pay his debt, and done the best he could to start with a new life and work, the world would have gone on just the same, the man's life would have gone on, his family would not have been subjected to grief and shame, and it would have been altogether a better thing to do.

It is strange that the courage that will accomplish self-destruction is not big enough to meet debt and a confession of failure. Truly indeed it is a strange world, and there is a lot of strange muddling and lack of reasoning in it, to the very pitiful ends that sometimes come to men and women.

Senator Borah says the nations seek Germany's ruin, but we take it Germany was the first contributor.

Whisky stills have been found near a graveyard and from the results that is a highly appropriate place for them.

Look out for explosions; the wintry blasts are blowing up streets and alleys everywhere.

It may be cowardly to kick a man when he is down, but it's sometimes necessary in order to get him up.

TIPPING BY COUPONS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The tipping question keeps coming up. The difficulty seems to be that it is based upon that trait of human nature which makes us want to get a little better treatment than anybody else and willing to pay for it.

The fact that it is undemocratic, unethical and unfair to our fellow creatures, does not seem to weigh against our innate selfishness, so all of us, in spite of our theories and convictions, keep on slipping out the quarters.

You see, when we are travelling, we want to be comfortable and are not particularly interested in the welfare of the human race.

A new light, however, has been shed on this question by an ingenious profit sharing system which has been adopted by the Winter Palace hotel at Cimiez, Nice.

This system is that the clients of the hotel are given vouchers representing part of the 17 per cent of the hotel takings, which the management devotes to the payment of its staff, and are asked to allot this among the various servants, a list of whom is furnished with the bill.

The employees of the Winter Palace and its associated establishment, the Royal Palace, at Royat, receive neither wages nor tips. A sum representing 17 per cent of the season's turn-over is divided among them. The fund is divided into two equal parts, the first of which is allotted for a fixed minimum payment. The second constitutes a bonus fund. Each customer receives shares to the amount of 10 per cent of his bill in this fund and is asked to allot them among the employees who have served him.

The general adoption of this system might result in relieving one of the minor troubles of life. Those of us who are inclined to be slightly conscientious do not like to give tips even when we can afford to, as we feel that we are putting up prices against others who cannot afford it.

On the contrary, if we tip too little, we are made to suffer for it sooner or later, as hotel staffs seem to have some mysterious means of putting us on the black list and sending wireless information about us from establishment to establishment.

Many travellers have adopted the system of adding a certain percentage of the bill for distribution among the servants. This simplifies matters, but it does not always work, as it does not always procure for the guest the attention he likes.

For this reason, the experiment of the Winter Palace hotel will be observed with interest.

THE LISTENING POST

There is a little red board on a standard in the street.

A couple of feet from the car track. Not by any means a barrier, because you could push it over easily if you wished.

Perhaps it says "keep to the right." Perhaps it does not say anything at all. But it means "keep to the right" even if it does not say so.

And you are a motorist. And you keep to the right.

That is, you do if the officer is looking. Or if you think he is.

If he is not about you may disregard the sign. And keep straight ahead.

For a great many of us obey the signal when the officer is looking.

And disregard it when he is not.

The board itself would not stop you. Nor could it compel you to alter your course.

You could overturn it easily.

And you might overturn the officer as well. If you chose to tilt at him with your car.

But back of the signal is the officer. Back of the officer is the law.

Back of the law, ought to be, society. The whole force of all of us.

And it is the power and authority back of the signal and the officer and the law that lead the motorist to obey.

It is the willing surrender of the right to do individually what he pleases, in the interest of society in general, that makes for good government.

It is the tendency to disregard the law or regulation when the enforcing authority is absent, that makes for bad government.

That citizenship which obeys law only when it sees the officer near, is bad citizenship.

And needs a lot of education.

That citizenship which decides for itself what laws are good and what laws are bad, is bad citizenship.

It matters not how high up it may be in the scale of wealth or position.

The law is designed to apply in the same way and with the same force to all citizens.

Whether they are big or little.

High or low.

Great or insignificant.

And when any one is able to suspend or set aside the law because of influence or authority, then the system of government is bad.

The disregard of laws is an evil thing. Even if the disregard consists only in evading a police regulation.

For the sake of immediate convenience. That is all the highwayman does.

Of the burglar.

He merely evades or disregards a law for the sake of convenience.

It seems expedient to him to get money by stealing it.

Or taking it away from somebody.

There is a law against that.

But he evades or disregards it.

So in the spirit of his deed he is the same man as the man who violates a simple police regulation.

The tendency to disregard laws and regulations is subversive of good government.

And of good citizenship.

In the extreme it means that every man says for himself what laws he will obey and what laws he will not obey.

And that would indeed be a pretty kettle of fish.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Of an Orchard.—By Katherine Tynan (1861)

Good is an Orchard, the Saint saith,
To meditate on life and death,
With a cool well a hive of bees,
A hermit's grot below the trees.

Good is an Orchard: very good,
Though one should wear no monkish hood,
Right good, when Spring awakes her flute,
And good in yellowing time of fruit.

Very good in the grass to lie
And see the network 'gainst the sky.

A living lace of blue and green,
And boughs that let the gold between.

The bees are types of souls that dwell
With honey in a quiet cell:
The ripe fruit figures goldenly
The soul's perfection in God's eye.

Prayer and praise in a country home,
Honey and fruit: a man might come,
Fed on such meats, to walk abroad,
And in his Orchard talk with God.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

And in a few years they will say: "Who is Arbuckle?"

Those who haven't the incomes says they would gladly pay the tax if they had 'em, and those who have them say they would be glad to give them up if they didn't have to pay the tax, and neither of them is telling the exact truth, and there you are.

We suppose there is a shortage of that good old-fashioned Vienna bread, too.

Eggs are dropping, says a market report. That means a scramble for cover on the part of the speculators.

What has become of our old and often mentioned friend, H. C. L.?

Now for a little rising temperature.

Candidate Cox says the democratic party stands just where it did after the election. Out in the cold, and still shivering.

Do we understand that congress has just discovered that lynching is a crime?

It would be a fine dispensation of providence if coal and fuel prices would drop along with the thermometer.

They call them cold snaps but they are really no snaps.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

"LET'S WORK IT OUT!"

(Lewiston Journal)

When forty men faced death, only one hour removed in submarine S-84, Electrician Fritz faced the issue with the summons, "We've got an hour to live; let's work it out." They did. The apparently impossible solution of their problem was found. One man took an heroic chance through the torpedo tube, others bailed frantically with tea cups, even the limited air men depended on to breathe was drawn upon to make the craft more buoyant. They worked it out.

It is the good soldier that pushes on to take the last trench. It is the successful business man who knows no final obstacle, however great. The battle may be at the finish, the chances one in ten thousand; with but "an hour to live." But the world jumps forward in line of progress every time men with faith and courage push on, reaching the goal at any honorable cost.

TURNING OF THE WETS

(Worcester Telegram)

Mr. Yellowly, the gentleman to whom is at present delegates one of the modern labors of Hercules, making New York approach to dryness, throws interesting sidelight upon what is now phase of prohibition. The drys have failed, the law has passed, but the drinkers remained contented and wet. To the ranks of the drys and the law-abiding now come additions—from the drinkers. Mr. Yellowly drinks. He has to in order to get evidence. He knows why the drinkers kick. He knows that the mercy of the bootlegger or illegal seller of liquor is non-existent question. He knows that the drinkers have stood the gaff and paid what was asked, but the rapacity of the bootlegger knows no limit. Dishonest in evading the law, he is dishonest in the value he gives.

Standing in a crowd of consumers, Mr. Yellowly heard expressions of delight when his raiding agents carried out case on case of wet goods. "The son of a gun has gouged us long enough, I'm glad he got it," was the consensus of the comment. Mr. Yellowly tells the rest of the world.

Now if the drinkers become a sore at the purveyors as the drys and the law-abiding are, the market for illicit liquor is going to decline. Already in New York the prices are so high that the sorely pressed wet has to rob his children's bank to get the price.

And having paid that price he does not get the drink, but a "2 in 3" concoction, the "three" being water. Profiteering in food was nothing beside the profiteering in liquor now. Goods not up to standard in the first place, watered in the second, doubled in price in the third—against that combination is it any wonder the payer objects, and rejoices when he sees the rum brought out by the authorities?

Mr. Yellowly says they have his sympathy and sees in this development new help for law's enforcement. The gentleman who "must have his toddy" finds there is a limit to even his "must."

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

Yesterday in this column attention was called to the statistics which showed that there was an automobile in California for every 5.19 persons in the state, and the suggestion comes to us that this means that at an appointed hour some day it would be possible to place every man, woman and child in this state in an automobile, and transport them somewhere. In other words it would be possible for every living soul in California to be on the move in an automobile.

And without crowding, too. And without discomfort for there are boulevards and sunshine for everyone. Perhaps now that this is off our minds we will find time to sit down and figure out how much gas such a theoretical journey would take, or how many miles the automobiles would stretch if placed in a straight line. There are endless possibilities—even the total pressure of the air in the tires would be interesting. We beg off, however. Enough for us to know that the automobile facilities are at hand for every person to have a comfortable ride in an automobile at one time.

It shows, too, how the automobile has come into our lives. It was not a great many years ago that the automobile was considered a luxury. Now it is a necessity like the telephone and the electric light. It makes us reflect, too, that we live in a marvelous age, but nothing to the marvelous age that awaits the rising and the next generations.

Kenneth L. Roberts, writing in Harper's for February, gives a little insight into the work of the bolshevik in Russia. In a paper on Russian refugees in Constantinople he says:

"In charge of the dining room was a slender and distinguished-looking lady about thirty-two years old. She was good looking in a pale, Russian manner, and her glossy black hair was plastered close to her head and around her ears in a style frequently affected by movie actresses when they play Russian parts. Her name was Tokareva. Her husband, who was a helpless sort of person, though good at bridge and pursuing the wild boar and what not, left the entire management of his huge estates on the River Don to her. These estates were so large—I checked this statement up with several Russians because it sounded fishy to me, too—that one had to drive for five days to get from one end of them to another. Madame Tokareva installed all sorts of improved farming machinery and made a tremendous success of the place. That was before the bolsheviks came. Now the estates aren't being farmed at all, and Russia's loss is counterbalanced by the fact that the Y. M. C. A. in Constantinople has a well-run dining room."

Back in White Plains, N. J., a judge advises a father to give his daughter a good spanking if she marries against without his consent. She was but 15 years old and the marriage was annulled. A spanking, indeed. Do you remember the time when you, as a boy, went on the basis of "what's five hours' fun to five minutes' licking." Well?

It took a jury 59 minutes to convict a hold-up man in Los Angeles. A score of such examples of speedy justice might help some.

"Broadway's night life has become a huge monstrosity, marring the good name of a great, dignified city. What was once a historic highway has become glittering lights and a leg show—silliness and sensuality." This is a quotation from a writer in the New York Times. "Broadway," he continues, "has been poisoned until it grows ominous to America." It is the conclusion of a story that points out that night life in New York is growing wilder, that the law regarding the closing of cabarets is not enforced and that lewdness and liquor are in no way suppressed. And the answer to it all is given, too. Read it: "Broadway grows worse because it has been captured by greed and commercialism."

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The new discovery will never do me any good—in all likelihood. The truth is that I do not learn very easily. Precept goes in one ear and flies out the other, observation finds me blind, and the only way in which I ever make an advance in knowledge is to have a hard fact kicked into me by the iron heel of experience. Still—I may remember my recent discovery, though I have very slight hope. It might be summarized in this way:

"It's easier to do a thing than it is to worry about doing it." I am the world's champion procrastinator. I never—literally never—do anything until something comes up from behind and pushes me. I remind myself of the old sheep which in John Burroughs' biography is described as furnishing the foot power for the old-fashioned churn. The old sheep hung back so on the runway that they finally set sharp spikes just where he could neatly back into them when he attempted to put off the churning. Whereupon, with a pained "ba-a" he would be on his vigorous way.

That's me. I'm that procrastinating sheep, with this difference. The sheep had no known conscience, whereas I am the most conscientious person in the world. If he succeeded in stopping the churn he felt that he was just that much ahead, until the spikes hit him. But if I had been than sheep I would have worried. Holy mackerel, how I would have worried! I would have lain awake in the black night and kept my wife awake by my groaning, and told my friends what tremendous tasks were heavy, heavy hanging over my head and made myself a nuisance all around.

I might, of course, have flown at the job and finished it. But I never have. My conscience has operated like the sharp spikes set in the rear of the Burroughs sheep. Neither one of us toiled our particular churn along until our particular spike prodded us. Which gets me back to my discovery.

I have written four letters explaining why it has been impossible for me to do a certain task. I have had four if not five telephone talks about it. I have successfully dodged two luncheon engagements at which it and my dilatoriness were—I knew—to be the piece de resistance.

This morning I did the whole thing—the whole darn thing—in half an hour.

I'd hate to tell you just what a procrastinating fool I seem to myself to be.

LOCAL ORCHESTRA IS PLANNED BY MARQUARDT

Retired Concert Master Would Have Municipal Organization

A Glendale municipal orchestra is to be started by John Marquardt, for many years a member of the Eastern Symphony orchestra in the capacity of concert master, violin soloist and conductor, who has at heart the advancement of this community musically.

Mr. Marquardt retired from the professional field about ten years ago, having well earned his ease, after traveling around the globe three times. The aim of this new enterprise is not, as may be imagined, an easy matter to achieve, but a man with experience and love for work, like Mr. Marquardt, knows there is dormant material here which can be molded into a concrete body of musicians.

There will be a weekly rehearsal at the high school building, room 124, on Tuesday nights at 7:30. It is expected that the orchestra will reach a membership of about 40 players.

Every player fairly advanced should appear that night with instrument and music rack.

We need, Mr. Marquardt says, many violinists, cellists, bass, flutes, clarinets, horns, cornets, trombones and drums. A few rehearsals will soon show what can be accomplished. There is no charge for attendance. Any expenses incurred for music, etc., will be advanced by the conductor, who hopes in time to find financial backing or by giving a public concert to secure the money. Mr. Marquardt can be consulted in this matter at 110 Burnett, corner Brand boulevard.

FORD REFORMS LOGGING CAMPS

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Feb. 3.—Henry Ford has revolutionized the system of conducting logging camps.

The men now enjoy all the comforts of a real home in his camps at Sidsaw and Ontonagon. In the old days, the men slept in dirty bunks with straw for mattresses, ate food that was good, bad and sometimes worse, were paid low wages, and were forced to read by lamplight, providing they bought their own reading matter.

Now it is different. The buildings are equipped with electric lights, reading room, dining tables and writing desks. Each man has his own bed, not a bunk, equipped with a mattress, sheets, blankets, comforter and pillows.

"Would Be" is the name of a new town in Oklahoma.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

CARELESS BOY

I'd like to a barefoot boy
Not over nine or ten,
And with my spirit full of joy
Go fishing once again.
In summer time when school is out,
Wherever fancy goes,
I'd like to roam with just about
A nickel's worth of clothes.

I would not mind a freckled face,
Or sunburn on my nose,
I'd like a butterfly to chase
As here and there it goes.
No one on earth to do me hurt,
These of my wealth the sum:
A pair of trousers and a shirt,
A whistle and a chum.

I'd like to go back to that time
When boy hearts had their will,
And mere possession of a dime
Gave me a wondrous thrill.
I always wanted to grow up,
A man about the town,
But since the years have filled my cup,
I'd like to grow back down.

I'd like to go and rest my soul
That writhes and twists and squirms,
With nothing but a fishing pole,
A line and angle worms.
For if in me might brightly burn
The fires of youth again,
I'd have no income tax return
To drive me half insane.

SAFE WITH FATHER HERE AFTER FIGHT OF THREE HUNDRED MILES TO WARSAW

These three Russian children are now safe with their father, Samuel Rothberg, at Newark, N. J., after making a 300-mile journey to Warsaw through territory infested with bandits. Rothberg had not heard from his family since the war started. His wife died of typhus and Chaim, the eldest, cared for the other children. One night there was a pogrom and the children fled. How they escaped pestilence, civil war and starvation is a tale of terror. They were three ragged little figures when they tramped into the joint distribution committee home in Warsaw. The committee is the Jewish agent of the American Jewish relief committee, to which Rothberg had appealed for news of his family. The children were kept for 116 days and then sent to America. They are, left to right: Eta, 9 years old; Chaim, 15, and Yudel, 12.

SEWER PLANT IS APPROVED FOR BURBANK

Realty Board of City Favors a Bond Issue

BURBANK, Feb. 3.—The last meeting of the realty board concerned itself especially with the question of a sewer plant for the city. A report on the matter was received by City Trustee Crawford and the committee which was appointed to confer with the city authorities and the board went on record as unanimously in favor of a sewer through the issuance of bonds. It declared that a successful election on the bond issue was of great importance to the city and that as a body and as individuals they expected to get behind the proposition and push hard for the carrying of the election.

Another matter which was brought up and received interested attention was the upbuilding of Burbank. In a general way it was the consensus of opinion that it was better to lay a few bricks solidly than to pile up many rocks with no secure foundation. A number spoke on this subject and all voiced the idea that a greater good would result to the city through a few and even smaller enterprises which had unquestionable foundation than in great concerns which were mostly air castles.

The realty board is getting into a highly satisfactory condition with regard to its own organization. The spirit of harmony and unanimity grows with every meeting, and as one of the officers of the board expressed it, "We are getting into shape to do some real work—to be of real help to the city."

There will be an adjourned meeting of the board next Monday at 4 o'clock in the office of W. A. Thompson.

DON'T FIGHT HOLD UP OPERATORS SAY POLICE

RED CROSS HAS OFFICIAL PAPER

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—"Run if you can, but don't fight robbers," is the advice of Michael Hughes, chief of detectives in Chicago.

Don't resist because life is more valuable than money, and most of the present day thugs will kill unhesitatingly, he advises. It's not a coward, but a prudent man who runs from robbers. "When in strange neighborhoods keep to car line streets as much as possible. Look around before starting along any other street. Be sure no one is following. Keep to the outside of the walk. If someone emerges from a hallway or gateway, that leaves at least the width of the walk as a running start. If suspicious characters approach, cross to the other side of the street. If they do likewise turn and run, not forgetting to yell for police."

The public can be of great assistance to the police in making robberies unprofitable. Hughes states. These are a few rules that may be followed:

1. Don't carry large sums of money or valuable jewelry at night.
2. Be always on the alert for "stick-up men" by anticipating them you may circumvent them.
3. Don't resist, if caught unaware and the "drop" is on you.
4. Run if you have the opportunity on being accosted.

STATE Y. M. C. A. COMMITTEE WILL MEET HERE

Accepts Invitation of Local Organization and Ministers

The Y. M. C. A. state committee on boys' work has accepted invitations received from the Glendale Y. M. C. A., supplemented by invitations from the Ministerial association, and other organizations, and has agreed to hold one of its two annual "Christian Calling" conferences in this city.

The date has been set for Saturday and Sunday, March 25-26. At that time high school boys and underclassmen in the colleges will present various phases of Christian activity, such as the ministry, missionary, Y. M. C. A. and layman work to encourage boys to take them up as a life calling.

It is expected that delegates to the number of 100 will be here from all parts of California south of Santa Barbara, and they will be entertained in private homes. While this is not one of the largest, it is regarded as one of the most important conferences held by the Y. M. C. A., and great care is exercised in selecting the delegates and arranging the program.

Tonight one of the Hi-Y groups under Leader Hatch is entertaining parents at the Baptist church.

REALTY MARKET SLOWS PACE TO SUSTAIN VALUES

The real estate business in Glendale has slowed down a little in the past month or two, but there is no cause for worry, said J. B. Doner, of the real estate firm of Doner, Hemenway and Burns, today, in discussing the general business depression that is felt over the United States. He continued: "While the business of selling property here has been slackened somewhat, there is no reason to believe that there will be a slump. It is natural, after a long period of sunshine, to expect clouds. It is the same in real estate selling. No business can experience the boom that Glendale real estate has had for the past two years without there coming a time when business slows up."

"This slowing up of the real estate market in Glendale does not mean that property values in this city are decreasing. It merely means that business is going back to normal. There is a business depression in the east and that cannot be denied. This depression is certain to effect all lines in Glendale to a certain extent. During this depressed period in the east it is certain that a certain percentage of the people in that section will move to California, and Glendale will get its share of the people from the east."

"If there is a slackening of building it is a good thing for Glendale, I think, rather than detrimental. There is nothing so bad for a town as to have three or four vacant stores along the principal business streets. It is far better to have a shortage of buildings rather than a surplus."

"This slight depression felt at present in the real estate market of Glendale will be relieved within a short time and business will continue along normal lines."
